

Chemical Arms Ban Held Nearer

U.S. Sees Definite Progress
In Soviet Disarmament Talks

GENEVA, Aug. 30 (UPI)—The United States told the 30-nation disarmament conference today that it is making definite progress with the Soviet Union on elaborating a treaty to ban chemical weapons.

U.S. disarmament negotiator Adrian Fisher also said that the two major world powers, together with Britain, "have put renewed effort" into the search for a prohibition of all nuclear tests.

Mr. Fisher, reporting to the final meeting of the disarmament conference this year, said that Washington and Moscow would convene a special session before next year's round starts in the spring if either the test ban or chemical weapons initiative is successful before then.

Apparently holding out greater hopes for a U.S.-Soviet treaty proposal on banning chemical weapons, Mr. Fisher said:

"This is a complex issue and several important questions still remain to be resolved, but I am pleased to be able to report that the positions of the two sides coincide on a number of key issues and on some others we are not far apart."

"At this point it seems fair to say that we have made progress negotiating a joint initiative and that there is a definite momentum toward our goal."

Land Reforms
In Portugal
Spur Clashes

EVORA, Portugal, Aug. 30 (Reuters)—Portuguese riot police sent from Lisbon clashed twice with leftist demonstrators in the Alentejo farming town today, in the first serious violence reported since parliament approved controversial agrarian reforms nearly three weeks ago.

Unofficial reports quoted by the state radio said at least 70 people were injured in incidents last night and today involving demonstrators and security forces.

Police here declined to confirm the figure and said an official statement might be issued later.

The trouble began last night when workers from a Communist-run cooperative tried to prevent government officials from marking out an area of expropriated land which is reserved for its former owners under the reform law.

A detachment of paramilitary guards intervened after workers sent themselves in front of a tractor being used to mark out the area with a trench. In this incident 16 people were reported injured and one arrest was reported.

Early today about 600 workers gathered outside the guard post here, demanding the release of the demonstrator. The workers were dispersed by riot police brought in from Lisbon, about 100 kilometers west.

About 15 people were reported injured in this clash.

Riot police were called in again today to break up about 1,000 demonstrators outside the law courts, where the trial of the arrested demonstrator on obstruction charges was postponed until October. Many more injuries were reported.

About 3,000 demonstrators, some on tractors, later paraded through the town, protesting the police action and the Socialist minority government's farm policy. But they later withdrew, and tension appeared to have eased, local officials said.

The new law, denounced by the Communists as counter-revolutionary, is partly aimed at correcting injustices under the original reform program carried out by a pro-Communist administration in 1976. Owners of land nationalized or expropriated at that time are allowed to keep a portion of the land for their own use under the Socialist reforms.

Owen and Young
Arrive in Kenya
On Peace Effort

NAIROBI, Aug. 30 (UPI)—British Foreign Secretary David Owen and U.S. envoy Andrew Young today arrived in Kenya on their African peace initiative, which has met opposition from virtually every quarter.

"I hope this is a more relaxing visit [to Kenya] between what has been a very interesting trip thus far," Mr. Young, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said at a news conference as both Western envoys dodged questions about their faltering discussions with white and black leaders.

Asked about reports that the five black African "front-line" states—Tanzania, Mozambique, Botswana, Zambia and Angola—and guerrilla leaders had rejected the British-U.S. proposals, Mr. Young and Mr. Owen said, "That's new to us."

Questioned about possible progress in their talks in Zambia, South Africa and Tanzania, Mr. Young said, "I don't really view progress. I think our job has been to communicate with people in very diverse circumstances a set of very reasonable proposals."

Earlier today, they conferred with Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere in Dar es Salaam. The text of a news interview with the Tanzanian President was released in which he warned he would reject the latest initiative if it did not insist on complete disarmament of the Rhodesian Army and its replacement by a black liberation force. "That's the only outstanding issue," Mr. Nyerere said.

Mr. Fisher said that if a joint initiative on either issue can be completed before the next session of the full disarmament conference in the spring, he and his Soviet counterpart, Viktor Likhachev, will as conference co-chairmen convene the full meeting ahead of time.

Draft Text Sought

The major powers decided last year that it would be better to try to get a basic draft text on banning all nuclear tests and outlawing chemical weapons in private discussions and then forward such texts to the full conference to final negotiation and approval.

Mr. Fisher did not disclose in his statement today the "important questions" that remain to be settled before Washington and Moscow can agree on the draft text of a chemical weapons treaty.

Western experts said, however, that these problems involve ways to verify such a treaty to prevent cheating and the issue of chemical agents which have both military and peaceful uses.

The disarmament conference did not set a specific date for the opening of next year's round. It recessed in order to report to the UN General Assembly.

Smith Vows
To Bar Blacks

(Continued from Page 1)

with terrorism, and that means the Patriotic Front—and if that means we don't get a settlement, we don't.

"My position is consistent, constant—and I have no intention of changing."

Mr. Smith is seeking a mandate to negotiate with black nationalist leaders living in Rhodesia. Such discussions would exclude guerrillas.

But the nationalist leaders, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabingi Sithole, have decided that they will never compromise on their demand for a black franchise.

The Prime Minister has been under fire during the campaign from the ultra-rightist Rhodesian Action party which charged that when Mr. Smith talks of majority rule he means black rule. Mr. Smith denies this.

Mr. Smith called the election on July 13, saying that he held out little hope of success for the U.S.-British initiative. He wanted a mandate to negotiate an internal arrangement and also to gain a clear two-thirds majority in the 66-seat House of Assembly for the Rhodesian Front.

The party lost that margin—required to pass major constitutional changes—when 12 members quit earlier this year over legislation ending much racial discrimination in Rhodesia. The 12 then formed the Rhodesian Action party.

The Rhodesian Front now holds 39 of the 50 white seats in the house and the Rhodesian Action party holds the remainder. Of the 16 black seats, eight members are elected by tribal colleges and eight are popularly elected. The first computer predictions of the likely result should be available within an hour or two after voting begins, but it was not clear whether it would be apparent if any party had won the vital two-thirds majority by the time counting stops for the night at midnight.

The war has made it impossible for ballot boxes to be moved to counting centers in outlying areas where guerrillas operate.

Body of Chairman Mao Tse-tung rests in a crystal coffin in marble mausoleum completed recently in Peking.

Mao's Marble, Colonnaded Mausoleum Is Completed

HONG KONG, Aug. 30.—Mao Tse-tung's mausoleum has been completed in Peking after nine months of around-the-clock work, the Chinese news agency reported today.

The body of the late chairman, draped with the party's flag, is preserved in a crystal coffin in an auditorium with the face just as "resolute and serene" as before, the agency said. The 100-foot-high mausoleum, with marble columns and a flat roof reminiscent of the Parthenon, occupies an area of more than 34,000 square yards north of the Monument to the People's Heroes in Tiananmen Square.

"Adding lustre to the architectural structure are 44 granite pillars, 12 on each side, that support the flat roof with two tiers of glazed golden-yellow tiles, spolia white marble balustrades, and the two-tiered platform base faced with red granite," the agency said.

"The hall's surroundings are landscaped with pines, cedars, cherry and other trees and flowers in riot.

"The most precious building materials, the best equipment and the rarest flowers were shipped in to Peking from every part of the country."

"The several thousand pieces of equipment and tens of thousands of cubic meters of stones for the project came from all corners of the motherland," it said.

Li Hsien-nien, Top Politburo Member, Says

Chinese 'Unhappy' Over Clinging of U.S. to Taiwan Regime

By Harrison E. Salisbury

PEKING, Aug. 30 (NYT)—One of China's top leaders said yesterday that "the Chinese people are quite unhappy" at the reluctance of President Carter to give up "his old friend" Taiwan.

Li Hsien-nien, one of the five members of the standing committee of the Politburo of the Chinese Communist party, speaking after the exploratory visit of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to Peking, said that some U.S. politicians say that China should take into consideration the feelings of the American people on the Taiwan question. But, he suggested, Americans are actually referring to politicians and elements of the mass media that continued to support the "old friends in Taiwan."

He said he thought, however, that the American people did not support this view.

In a wide-ranging interview in Peking's Great Hall of the People, Mr. Li, speaking through an interpreter, also said that in China's view the main focus of Soviet foreign policy lay in Europe and in the Middle East and was directed against the United States.

Mr. Li also said that China's "Gang of Four" headed by Chiang Ching-kuo, Mao Tse-tung's widow, would not be executed.

The Chinese leader acknowledged that the Soviet Union had a force of 1 million along its border with China, but said that if the Russians really wanted to deal with China, a force of 1 million or 2 million would not be sufficient.

"We do not mean that the Soviet Union will not attack us," he said. "We should get prepared. But if you compare the two sides, Europe and China, in terms of which part is of the greater interest to the Soviet Union, I think it is Europe."

He scorned Soviet talk of détente and disarmament. "We have no interest in détente," he said. "While they talk of détente, Soviet forces have grown by 1 million men in the past 10 years. If one poses the question as to which will be the first to be bitten by the polar bear it is not necessarily China. Perhaps it will be Europe."

He suggested that in comparison with Russia the United States son with Russia the United States was to protect its vested interests while the Soviet Union was carrying out an expansionist policy in every way.

So far as Soviet pressure on the Chinese frontier is concerned, he said, the pressure remains but their primary target is the United States and Japan as much as China.

Mr. Li denied that China was a warlike country, saying it would never fire the first shot in a conventional or nuclear war. China wants a genuine peace, not a sham peace, he added. "Why should we want war?" he asked. "We are not very rich, and if they say we haven't raw materials it is not true." China has enough to live on, Mr. Li added.

China is opposed to those who really want war but are propagating a sham talk of peace, he said. "Talks about defense and peace," he observed, "are like smoking opium. They will dull the will of the people so that they will be caught unprepared."

He said that he had made this kind of declaration before and had been violently attacked by the Soviet Union but that he did not object to this. If the Russians did not attack him then it would mean that he had made some mistake.

Wallowing in mire

"If you don't accuse them," he observed, "and they don't accuse you then it means you are wallowing in the same mire."

Mr. Li, who is 67, rose as an army commander during the years the Communist party spent in remote Xenan Province. He has been a member of the Politburo since 1956 and a vice-chairman since 1962. He is a member of the most important organ of the Politburo, its standing committee, and is listed as the fourth of its five members. He ranks as the third vice-premier after Yeh Chien-ying and Teng Hsiao-ping.

Mr. Li asked whether Miss Chiang and her associates would be tried and executed, said with some emphasis that "we don't kill them. We will let them live and feed them."

He said that China would not follow the precedent of Stalin. "Stalin was a great Marxist leader," he said, "but he liked to kill people. He liked to kill but in some cases this was really not so proper."

Mao said Mr. Li consistently held that the Chinese Communists should not kill too many people. It was proper to deprive wrongdoers of all political rights, to expel them from the Communist party and to take away their official posts, he said, adding that it was also appropriate not to let them be at large for a period of time.

Mr. Li said that activities of "the gang" had caused serious difficulties in many activities and regions. He singled out Hangchow as an area of great damage and said that a year ago, "when foreign friends asked to go to Hangchow, the only way to deal with them was to say that the lake was under repairs."

Shanghai, the principal base of "the gang," he said, suffered relatively little since it was the group's policy to maintain a stable situation in Shanghai while causing political and economic difficulties elsewhere in the country.

He gave major credit to Mao for the steps that led to the group's downfall. He said that Miss Chiang and the others had joined the Cultural Revolution and the drive against former chief of state Liu Shao-chi with apparent correctness. Actually, he said, investigation had disclosed some connections between them and Mr. Liu.

Asked what had happened to Mr. Liu and his associates, purged during the Cultural Revolution, he said that this group is now "idle." Asked if Mr. Liu had since died, as has been reported abroad, he said, "Well, they are anyway advanced in years." His remark seemed to imply Mr. Liu was still living.

There was much talk about the foolishness of the long hostility. Mr. Jahn spoke bitterly against the Palestine Liberation Organization, although nervously because the guerrillas have taken retribution against Palestinian Arabs who oppose them.

Two men arrived, a doctor and a businessman. "You see?" said Mrs. Jahn. "One is an Arab and one is a Jew. They are friends. Can you tell which is which?" It was not obvious.

The Jahns are in the importing business. They complained

They were eating lunch in the parked garden of a restaurant at Beit Sahar, near Bethlehem, dining on Arab food as guests of their friend, Mayor Mahmoud Abu Reesh of Bethany. The conversation soon turned to the uncertainties of the future and relations between Arabs and Jews.

"I have thought about it a lot," said Mr. Boaz. "Remember, I come from an American, Jeffersonian background. I can love the way people here—Arabs and Oriental Jews—live, but I can't understand the hate. It's just not in my mental makeup. But I know what I would do. I'm a Jew and I'm nodding to Mr. Abu Reesh."

Mr. Li said that activities of "the gang" had caused serious difficulties in many activities and regions. He singled out Hangchow as an area of great damage and said that a year ago, "when foreign friends asked to go to Hangchow, the only way to deal with them was to say that the lake was under repairs."

Shanghai, the principal base of "the gang," he said, suffered relatively little since it was the group's policy to maintain a stable situation in Shanghai while causing political and economic difficulties elsewhere in the country.

He gave major credit to Mao for the steps that led to the group's downfall. He said that Miss Chiang and the others had joined the Cultural Revolution and the drive against former chief of state Liu Shao-chi with apparent correctness. Actually, he said, investigation had disclosed some connections between them and Mr. Liu.

Asked what had happened to Mr. Liu and his associates, purged during the Cultural Revolution, he said that this group is now "idle." Asked if Mr. Liu had since died, as has been reported abroad, he said, "Well, they are anyway advanced in years." His remark seemed to imply Mr. Liu was still living.

There was much talk about the foolishness of the long hostility. Mr. Jahn spoke bitterly against the Palestine Liberation Organization, although nervously because the guerrillas have taken retribution against Palestinian Arabs who oppose them.

Two men arrived, a doctor and a businessman. "You see?" said Mrs. Jahn. "One is an Arab and one is a Jew. They are friends. Can you tell which is which?" It was not obvious.

The Jahns are in the importing business. They complained

Uncertainty Cramps Life-Styles

Israel Still Tries, but Fails,
To Be 'Just a Normal Nation'

By Flora Lewis

JERUSALEM (NYT)—Soon after Israel was established, its first police chief, Yehiel Sahar, enunciated that at last there would be Jewish policemen arresting Jewish prostitutes and Jewish burglars, because in their own country the Jews could settle down and be "just like anybody, a normal nation."

Now, almost 30 years later, the papers are full of articles about investigations of organized crime, black-marketing and social work to dissuade women from prostitution.

There is a new government, which won power partly because of a series of corruption scandals that undermined the Labor party, which had ruled since independence in 1948.

But Israel still is not "just like any other nation." It has frontiers with four countries, but the only way its people can leave is by international waters. Lebanese Christians can enter by way of the "good fence" on the north and Arabs, whether they are Israeli citizens or not, can go through the checkpoints leading to the "open bridges" across the Jordan River, but Israeli Jews cannot.

Arvi and Eve Boaz, U.S. citizens who have settled in Israel and fallen in love with the Middle East, its air, its space, its manner, said with yearning when they heard that a visitor was going to cross the bridge next day. "I would love to travel in the region," said Boaz, an architect. "I don't care much about touring Europe, or exotic places, but I would like to visit our neighbors."

Uncertainty

They were eating lunch in the parked garden of a restaurant at Beit Sahar, near Bethlehem, dining on Arab food as guests of their friend, Mayor Mahmoud Abu Reesh of Bethany. The conversation soon turned to the uncertainties of the future and relations between Arabs and Jews.

"I have thought about it a lot," said Mr. Boaz. "Remember, I come from an American, Jeffersonian background. I can love the way people here—Arabs and Oriental Jews—live, but I can't understand the hate. It's just not in my mental makeup. But I know what I would do. I'm a Jew and I'm nodding to Mr. Abu Reesh."

Mr. Li said that activities of "the gang" had caused serious difficulties in many activities and regions. He singled out Hangchow as an area of great damage and said that a year ago, "when foreign friends asked to go to Hangchow, the only way to deal with them was to say that the lake was under repairs."

Shanghai, the principal base of "the gang," he said, suffered relatively little since it was the group's policy to maintain a stable situation in Shanghai while causing political and economic difficulties elsewhere in the country.

He gave major credit to Mao for the steps that led to the group's downfall. He said that Miss Chiang and the others had joined the Cultural Revolution and the drive against former chief of state Liu Shao-chi with apparent correctness. Actually, he said, investigation had disclosed some connections between them and Mr. Liu.

Asked what had happened to Mr. Liu and his associates, purged during the Cultural Revolution, he said that this group is now "idle." Asked if Mr. Liu had since died, as has been reported abroad, he said, "Well, they are anyway advanced in years." His remark seemed to imply Mr. Liu was still living.

There was much talk about the foolishness of the long hostility. Mr. Jahn spoke bitterly against the Palestine Liberation Organization, although nervously because the guerrillas have taken retribution against Palestinian Arabs who oppose them.

Two men arrived, a doctor and a businessman. "You see?" said Mrs. Jahn. "One is an Arab and one is a Jew. They are friends. Can you tell which is which?" It was not obvious.

The Jahns are in the importing business. They complained

They were eating lunch in the parked garden of a restaurant at Beit Sahar, near Bethlehem, dining on Arab food as guests of their friend, Mayor Mahmoud Abu Reesh of Bethany. The conversation soon turned to the uncertainties of the future and relations between Arabs and Jews.

"I have thought about it a lot," said Mr. Boaz. "Remember, I come from an American, Jeffersonian background. I can love the way people here—Arabs and Oriental Jews—live, but I can't understand the hate. It's just not in my mental makeup. But I know what I would do. I'm a Jew and I'm nodding to Mr. Abu Reesh."

Mr. Li said that activities of "the gang" had caused serious difficulties in many activities and regions. He singled out Hangchow as an area of great damage and said that a year ago, "when foreign friends asked to go to Hangchow, the only way to deal with them was to say that the lake was under repairs."

Shanghai, the principal base of "the gang," he said, suffered relatively little since it was the group's policy to maintain a stable situation in Shanghai while causing political and economic difficulties elsewhere in the country.

He gave major credit to Mao for the steps that led to the group's downfall. He said that Miss Chiang and the others had joined the Cultural Revolution and the drive against former chief of state Liu Shao-chi with apparent correctness. Actually, he said, investigation had disclosed some connections between them and Mr. Liu.

Asked what had happened to Mr. Liu and his associates, purged during the Cultural Revolution, he said that this group is now "idle." Asked if Mr. Liu had since died, as has been reported abroad, he said, "Well, they are anyway advanced in years." His remark seemed to imply Mr. Liu was still living.

There was much talk about the foolishness of the long hostility. Mr. Jahn spoke bitterly against the Palestine Liberation Organization, although nervously because the guerrillas have taken retribution against Palestinian Arabs who oppose them.

Two men arrived, a doctor and a businessman. "You see?" said Mrs. Jahn. "One is an Arab and one is a Jew. They are friends. Can you tell which is which?" It was not obvious.

The Jahns are in the importing business. They complained

They were eating lunch in the parked garden of a restaurant at Beit Sahar, near Bethlehem, dining on Arab food as guests of their friend, Mayor Mahmoud Abu Reesh of Bethany. The conversation soon turned to the uncertainties of the future and relations between Arabs and Jews.

"I have thought about it a lot," said Mr. Boaz. "Remember, I come from an American, Jeffersonian background. I can love the way people here—Arabs and Oriental Jews—live, but I can't understand the hate. It's just not in my mental makeup. But I know what I would do. I'm a Jew and I'm nodding to Mr. Abu Reesh."

Mr. Li said that activities of "the gang" had caused serious difficulties in many activities and regions. He singled out Hangchow as an area of great damage and said that a year ago, "when foreign friends asked to go to Hangchow, the only way to deal with them was to say that the lake was under repairs."

Shanghai, the principal base of "the gang," he said, suffered relatively little since it was the group's policy to maintain a stable situation in Shanghai while causing political and economic difficulties elsewhere in the country.

He gave major credit to Mao for the steps that led to the group's downfall. He said that Miss Chiang and the others had joined the Cultural Revolution and the drive against former chief of state Liu Shao-chi with apparent correctness. Actually, he said, investigation had disclosed some connections between them and Mr. Liu.

Asked what had happened to Mr. Liu and his associates, purged during the Cultural Revolution, he said that this group is now "idle." Asked if Mr. Liu had since died, as has been reported abroad, he said, "Well, they are anyway advanced in years." His remark seemed to imply Mr. Liu was still living.

There was much talk about the foolishness of the long hostility. Mr. Jahn spoke bitterly against the Palestine Liberation Organization, although nervously because the guerrillas have taken retribution against Palestinian Arabs who oppose them.

Two men arrived, a doctor and a businessman. "You see?" said Mrs. Jahn. "One is an Arab and one is a Jew. They are friends. Can you tell which is which?" It was not obvious.

The Jahns are in the importing business. They complained about the borrowing tar regulations, the fact that ministry where they must permits there are no Arab and few speak English. An were hilarious stories ab regulations themselves.

They were allowed to b the forerunners of the la they had imported from E because hindquarters, wh cheaper, are not kosher their offer to buy whole and distribute hindquart the West Bank, sharing ti advantage, was rejected.

They told about sendi rabbis to Australia to cert meat bought there was sla ed according to ritual. Rabbis absconded to the States so the whole shipm banned for lack of cre when it arrived.

The new settlements a ged, in harsh terrain and amenities, but the old li have long passed the s sage, Ayatollah Khomeini, on the arid plains of Ga young Russians in 1910, an elaborate guest hou several restaurants. Ti stylish and comfortable petitive with modern ho-

Conditions Ease

There are luxury shops with handsome sculpt paintings and attractive t the older cities. Life br in many ways, and ther interest now in design, i things, in comforts an veniences. Not everyone gether pleased about thi ever, since there is some n for the old days.

A Russian painter David, one of 12 young r escaped to Palestine in boat during World War II ed sardonically as he poi that of the 12 he was t one still living in Israel others had gone to Car South America. His wife spoke with some disdain competitors so far remov the old spirit of ideals sacrifice that they could t of their Gueuds and their

Another former police Shlomo Hillel, spoke of th of the "unprivileged," old days, he said, people break into apartments, and because there was nothin stealing, and scarcely any in a position to arouse en he said, the statistical chs tuates, mourning when th quiet and life seems seve ing when there is a wave terrorism. Fear, and a seem to improve social t "It draws people togeth Hillel said. "Then there solidarity."

U.S. Funds

Israeli Pan

(Continued from Page

in Washington, is unique its size and sophistication also had been the only s sign organization in the financed by U.S. funds.

Gen. Fish, who appro financing plan two day a request from Israel on 1 1974, defended it in an as "a perfectly legitimate ment" that is legal and under the Foreign Militar Act. He said the admini expenses of the Israeli pi ing mission have been ch as a "defense service" be financed under U.S. la

Two Congressmen

The legislators most dire involved in the financing of arms purchases, Sen. Huber phrey, D-Minn., chairman Senate Foreign Relations committee on foreign assi and Rep. J. C. Hamilton, I chairman of the House in tional Relations Subcommi Europe and the Middle Ea they knew nothing of the f ing arrangement. Rep. Ha has sent a letter to the D Department asking for del

For the last several year United States has provid rael, as part of a $2.2-billio nual aid package, with $1 annually in foreign milita credits, $500 million being and $500 million a loan.

The arms-mission ex must come out of the lea lion, according to the Pen roll. Such loans to countries must be paid ba interest in 7 to 12 years Israel, under a special pr of law, is permitted to m repayments over more the years with a grace perod years on repayment of prin

"I don't view this as taxp dollars [going to the Israeli mission.] This is credit fin which Israel has to pay with interest," Gen. Fish said.

The purchasing mission in York, which is a branch of Israel's Ministry of Def makes about 30 per cent o purchases through the Pen and the rest directly from n firms. Pentagon officials described the mission as bi effective in obtaining the prices and delivery schedules Israeli purchases.

$2 Million in Aid to To ROME, Aug. 30 (Reuter: The United Nations World Program said today that it sending food aid worth $2 mil to Togo, where conditions o famine had been found in provinces.

4 Your brother's jokes.

(A good reason to call home.)

An international call is the next best thing to being there.

HARRY'S N.Y. BAR
EST. 1971
5 Rue Danton, PARIS.
Falkenturm Str. 9, Munich.

هنا من لاجل

Airport Delays

Main's Air Snarl Continues Full Traffic Strike Ends

DN, Aug. 30 (UPI).—Air traffic was as snarl today as a new slow-down after the end of a strike.

Air traffic control ended a strike at midday and reported for work, but it took more than a week to get the system back to normal. Britain's Civil Aviation Authority took a tough line. It is reported that duty was not given to anyone who did not work normally. Those who did not work normally were not given duty for 48 hours.

Threatened suspensions were threatened with suspension at the end of the strike. A reaction was swift. A committee of all-out strike "from the first man is out." The recommendation was to suspend the first man. The flight cancellations and airport delays continued without

The state-owned British Airways again canceled 46 scheduled flights, including long-distance hauls. Internal services were badly hit. No flights at all left for Liverpool and several other cities.

Traffic control assistants involved in the dispute—those at Prestwick Airport in Scotland stayed on strike—threw up picket lines around London's West Drayton Control Center.

Few said they would give in to the CAA to work normally. "We have come this far and we don't intend to back down now," a striker said. Airport officials said traffic actually moved more smoothly without the assistants than when they were nominally at work but refusing certain duties.

The traffic control computer was working again today. Senior controllers coped fairly well with remaining scheduled flights. The striking assistants accused the senior controllers of "flagrant strikebreaking," and interunion trouble also loomed.

French Harvén Stand PARIS, Aug. 30 (UPI).—The National Union of Air Traffic Control Operators called upon their members today to continue their 10-day slowdown and to harden their position in negotiations to come.

The union said in a statement that they would "understand all necessary action" to get satisfactory pay, shorter hours and the dismissal of military air controllers from civilian airports.

French Harvén Stand PARIS, Aug. 30 (UPI).—The National Union of Air Traffic Control Operators called upon their members today to continue their 10-day slowdown and to harden their position in negotiations to come.

The union said in a statement that they would "understand all necessary action" to get satisfactory pay, shorter hours and the dismissal of military air controllers from civilian airports.

The union said in a statement that they would "understand all necessary action" to get satisfactory pay, shorter hours and the dismissal of military air controllers from civilian airports.

The union said in a statement that they would "understand all necessary action" to get satisfactory pay, shorter hours and the dismissal of military air controllers from civilian airports.

The union said in a statement that they would "understand all necessary action" to get satisfactory pay, shorter hours and the dismissal of military air controllers from civilian airports.

The union said in a statement that they would "understand all necessary action" to get satisfactory pay, shorter hours and the dismissal of military air controllers from civilian airports.

The union said in a statement that they would "understand all necessary action" to get satisfactory pay, shorter hours and the dismissal of military air controllers from civilian airports.

MARSUPIAL FIDELITY—Liz, a wombat, following her master, Bruce Whatman, of Pambula, Australia. Bruce raised the animal after it was orphaned.

UN Desert Talks Disrupted By Dispute on Israeli Report

NAIROBI, Aug. 30 (UPI).—A United Nations conference on halting the spread of the world's desert areas plunged into a political dispute today when half the delegates walked out during a speech by Israel.

The walkout came after a representative of the Organization of African Unity denounced Israel for racism and charged that an Israeli report on the Negev Desert was an attempt to redraw the Jewish state's boundaries.

The OAU charged that Israel, Rhodesia and South Africa were guilty of "crimes against humanity" in the environmental field.

56 Nations Leave When Joel Shechter, the Israeli delegate, later took the podium to deliver his speech to the UN Conference on Desertification, delegates of 56 nations, including many Arab nations, the Soviet Union and China, walked out of the hall.

About 110 countries are taking part in the meeting. Similar walkouts have become a familiar feature at UN meetings in recent years, but conference organizers had issued appeals at the start of the conference yesterday to keep politics out.

OAU delegate Nureddin Djoudi charged that the controversial Israeli report on reclamation of the Negev Desert "reflected Israeli propaganda."

He complained that a hand-drawn map in the report did not show Israel's northern boundary, that it referred to Judea rather than the "West Bank" and that a passage attributed the decline of the region's lands to Moslem rule in the seventh century.

Removal Demanded Mostafa Talba, the secretary-general of the conference and an Egyptian, issued a disclaimer saying that the Israeli report was not a UN document. The Egyptian delegation then demanded the removal of the map.

The Israelis said that the report was not an attempt to redraw the area's frontiers and that they did not intend to malign anyone with the historical references to Judea and Moslem rule.

In a separate development, the United States told the conference that it is prepared to offer 1,000 Peace Corps volunteers to the worldwide effort to halt deserts from spreading to fertile lands.

Intensified Attack U.S. delegate James Joseph, an under secretary of the interior, said that the program is part of "an intensified, coordinated at-

Dutch Nazi Suspect Denies Soviet Charge

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 30 (AP).—Dutch millionaire art collector Pieter Menken today denied in court Soviet testimony placing him at the scene of World War II atrocities carried out by German forces in Poland.

Menken, 78, is accused of taking part in the 1941 slaughter of some 200 Poles and Jews at the village of Podhorocze and Urycz, which are now part of the Soviet Ukraine.

Edith Lincoln, Dies; Pioneer TB Treatment

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (NYT).—Edith Maas Lincoln, 86, who led of the chest clinic of the New York Medical Service at Bellevue Hospital Center, died Sunday of cancer at her home in the Bronx, N.Y. Lincoln was awarded the gold medal of the National Tuberculosis Association in 1959 for her "most meritorious contributions on the cause, prevention and treatment of tuberculosis." She was her early achievement in chemotherapy. In 1951 received the Elizabeth Blackwell Award given annually to an outstanding woman physician. Lincoln was born in New York City and graduated in 1912 from Vassar College with a brilliant record. She received her medical degree in 1916. She was appointed in 1922 to start the chest clinic at Bellevue headed it until her retirement in 1956. In 1949, she was able to report a dozen children treated in chest clinic with streptomycin and promazine were free from tuberculosis meningitis and military tuberculosis. Forms of the disease that had almost always fatal. Lincoln was married to Dr. Lincoln, a physician who died in 1941.

Kappler's Escape Blots Image of Carabinieri

By Paul Hofmann

ROME, Aug. 30 (NYT).—A pillar of law and order in Italy—the Carabinieri—suddenly seems to be tottering, and through a bizarre chain of events, it fell to a Nazi war criminal to reveal the decay.

Carabinieri soldiers were guarding Herbert Kappler, the former Gestapo chief of Rome, when he escaped from a military hospital here on Aug. 15 and fled to West Germany.

The government publicly blamed the Carabinieri for Kappler's escape, and the commander of the prestigious corps, Gen. Enrico Mino, disciplined a group of officers for dereliction of duty in the Kappler affair.

During the last two weeks, a large part of the press joined in the criticism, but the Carabinieri also found influential defenders. "The government must say whether it intends to destroy the Carabinieri, one of the last institutions that aren't yet corroded by the general crisis," a spokesman for the leftist Republican party warned. "The conditions for grave danger are being created."

Diverse Assignments Guarding a Nazi war criminal was only one in a vast array of police and security jobs that the 80,000 Carabinieri handle. Members of the elite corps, a branch of the Italian Army, serve as rural police and compete with the civilian-led public security guards in law enforcement in urban areas. Italy's counterintelligence service is staffed by Carabinieri. In Sicily, they hunt for mafiosi.

Their Napoleonic-style uniforms are a reminder of the corps's early-19th-century origin as a military police force of the kings of Savoy, the small northern Italian state that eventually unified the nation.

In the second half of the last century, they helped consolidate the grip of the Savoy kings on Rome and southern Italy, and in 1943 they arrested the Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini on orders from King Victor Emmanuel III.

The Italian republic proclaimed after World War II, and all of its governments, have used the Carabinieri as a reliable instrument for law enforcement and sensitive tasks.

The elite corps managed to keep above factional politics and retain, until now, an image of probity and efficiency.

The official inquiry into how the war criminal, 70 years old and gravely ill with cancer, was smuggled out of the hospital in a suitcase is still going on. It is already clear, however, that the Carabinieri who were supposed to watch him around the clock either were not there or looked the other way.

Critics said that the corps's failure to prevent Kappler from escaping and its failure to recapture him before he reached West Germany are only two examples of its inefficiency.

In the public storm that followed Kappler's flight, it seemed as if the Carabinieri prestige had suddenly crumbled.

There are reports of a feud between Gen. Mino, the corps's commander, and Gen. Arnaldo Ferrara, his deputy. The impression is that the disciplinary measures taken by the Carabinieri commander will be followed by a vast shuffle in the structure of the force to try to restore its reputation.

Tito Welcomed By Hua, Crowds At Peking Airport HONG KONG, Aug. 30 (UPI).—Chairman Hua Guofeng welcomed President Tito of Yugoslavia to China today and said that the rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union is bound to lead to a world war some day.

Marshal Tito, 88, who once was denounced by China as a traitor to Communism, received one of the warmest welcomes Peking has given a foreign visitor in many years, as he arrived from Pyongyang, North Korea.

Thousands gathered at the Peking airport for a "grand welcoming ceremony." The New China News Agency reported. The agency said more than 100,000 persons cheered Marshal Tito.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Thousands gathered at the Peking airport for a "grand welcoming ceremony." The New China News Agency reported. The agency said more than 100,000 persons cheered Marshal Tito.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

areas. Italy's counterintelligence service is staffed by Carabinieri. In Sicily, they hunt for mafiosi.

Their Napoleonic-style uniforms are a reminder of the corps's early-19th-century origin as a military police force of the kings of Savoy, the small northern Italian state that eventually unified the nation.

In the second half of the last century, they helped consolidate the grip of the Savoy kings on Rome and southern Italy, and in 1943 they arrested the Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini on orders from King Victor Emmanuel III.

The Italian republic proclaimed after World War II, and all of its governments, have used the Carabinieri as a reliable instrument for law enforcement and sensitive tasks.

The elite corps managed to keep above factional politics and retain, until now, an image of probity and efficiency.

The official inquiry into how the war criminal, 70 years old and gravely ill with cancer, was smuggled out of the hospital in a suitcase is still going on. It is already clear, however, that the Carabinieri who were supposed to watch him around the clock either were not there or looked the other way.

Critics said that the corps's failure to prevent Kappler from escaping and its failure to recapture him before he reached West Germany are only two examples of its inefficiency.

In the public storm that followed Kappler's flight, it seemed as if the Carabinieri prestige had suddenly crumbled.

There are reports of a feud between Gen. Mino, the corps's commander, and Gen. Arnaldo Ferrara, his deputy. The impression is that the disciplinary measures taken by the Carabinieri commander will be followed by a vast shuffle in the structure of the force to try to restore its reputation.

Tito Welcomed By Hua, Crowds At Peking Airport HONG KONG, Aug. 30 (UPI).—Chairman Hua Guofeng welcomed President Tito of Yugoslavia to China today and said that the rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union is bound to lead to a world war some day.

Marshal Tito, 88, who once was denounced by China as a traitor to Communism, received one of the warmest welcomes Peking has given a foreign visitor in many years, as he arrived from Pyongyang, North Korea.

Thousands gathered at the Peking airport for a "grand welcoming ceremony." The New China News Agency reported. The agency said more than 100,000 persons cheered Marshal Tito.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Thousands gathered at the Peking airport for a "grand welcoming ceremony." The New China News Agency reported. The agency said more than 100,000 persons cheered Marshal Tito.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

areas. Italy's counterintelligence service is staffed by Carabinieri. In Sicily, they hunt for mafiosi.

Their Napoleonic-style uniforms are a reminder of the corps's early-19th-century origin as a military police force of the kings of Savoy, the small northern Italian state that eventually unified the nation.

In the second half of the last century, they helped consolidate the grip of the Savoy kings on Rome and southern Italy, and in 1943 they arrested the Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini on orders from King Victor Emmanuel III.

The Italian republic proclaimed after World War II, and all of its governments, have used the Carabinieri as a reliable instrument for law enforcement and sensitive tasks.

The elite corps managed to keep above factional politics and retain, until now, an image of probity and efficiency.

The official inquiry into how the war criminal, 70 years old and gravely ill with cancer, was smuggled out of the hospital in a suitcase is still going on. It is already clear, however, that the Carabinieri who were supposed to watch him around the clock either were not there or looked the other way.

Critics said that the corps's failure to prevent Kappler from escaping and its failure to recapture him before he reached West Germany are only two examples of its inefficiency.

In the public storm that followed Kappler's flight, it seemed as if the Carabinieri prestige had suddenly crumbled.

There are reports of a feud between Gen. Mino, the corps's commander, and Gen. Arnaldo Ferrara, his deputy. The impression is that the disciplinary measures taken by the Carabinieri commander will be followed by a vast shuffle in the structure of the force to try to restore its reputation.

Tito Welcomed By Hua, Crowds At Peking Airport HONG KONG, Aug. 30 (UPI).—Chairman Hua Guofeng welcomed President Tito of Yugoslavia to China today and said that the rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union is bound to lead to a world war some day.

Marshal Tito, 88, who once was denounced by China as a traitor to Communism, received one of the warmest welcomes Peking has given a foreign visitor in many years, as he arrived from Pyongyang, North Korea.

Thousands gathered at the Peking airport for a "grand welcoming ceremony." The New China News Agency reported. The agency said more than 100,000 persons cheered Marshal Tito.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Thousands gathered at the Peking airport for a "grand welcoming ceremony." The New China News Agency reported. The agency said more than 100,000 persons cheered Marshal Tito.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Mr. Hua was at the airport along with two party vice-chairmen, Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien, the news agency said. Mr. Hua gave a banquet in President Tito's honor tonight.

Sign of the Times.

When it was the thing to make cars longer and wider rather than better, BMW was already building cars with the future in mind: compact and lively, manoeuvrable and dynamic, comfortable and safe to drive.

It is a sign of the times that people are no longer choosing cars which are large, pretentious and unwieldy. They are choosing BMW.

BMW cars The BMW range of fine automobiles: the ultimate in performance, comfort and safety. Designed for the man who appreciates the excitement of driving.

on the essential: this means not so much bigger as more compact.

It is a sign of the times that people are no longer choosing cars which are large, pretentious and unwieldy. They are choosing BMW.

BMW cars The BMW range of fine automobiles: the ultimate in performance, comfort and safety. Designed for the man who appreciates the excitement of driving.

BMW - Sheer driving pleasure

No matter how you came to Europe, you can exchange most types of return ticket for a flight home with Pan Am at no extra cost. Just phone us for details.

We fly to the USA daily from:

City	Telephone No.
Amsterdam	234760
Berlin	88-10-11
Brussels	511-64-05
Copenhagen	(01) 12 31 23
Frankfurt	23-05-91
Hamburg	500 9281
London	(01) 734 7292
Munich	558171
Oslo	41-56-00
Rome	475 48 41
Stockholm	231920

Pan Am flies to the following US cities:
Boston, Detroit, Honolulu, Los Angeles,
New York, Philadelphia (via Altair), Portland,
San Francisco, Seattle, Washington.

Pan Am's People

World's most experienced

LA MÉTairie CH-1260 NYON
(Vaud) Switzerland. Tel.: 1941/022/611581.

The private first-class establishment for nervous illnesses. La Métaire is situated in a large park, on the lake of Geneva, 30 minutes from Geneva and Air Terminal. Chemotherapy, Psychotherapy, Biological treatments, Detoxication, Physiotherapy, Hydrotherapy, Sports. The clinic has its own analysis laboratory and electroencephalographic facilities on the premises. Tennis courts, Gymnasium with all modern installations. Sports instructor attached to the clinic.

PARIS MOVIES

'A Star Is Born'—Streisand Version

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

PARIS, Aug. 30 (UPI).—"A Star Is Born" (at the Elysées-Cinéma and the Danton in English) is the third taking of that venerable tearjerker about the merciless balancing scales of show business. In its latest incarnation Barbra Streisand is the ascending artist whose discoverer, guide and lover (here Kris Kristofferson) sinks from fame to a drunkard's grave despite her valiant endeavors to save him. The lachrymose tale has lost none of its heavy sentimentality, but it has been de-glamorized by shifting its scene to the raucous pop-music world to complement its present casting.

The original film, in which Janet Gaynor and Fredric March were the ill-starred lovers, was based on a bit of Hollywood history. When John Gilbert, the matinee idol of the silent screen, met defeat before the talkie microphones, he consulted with an impish author, Ben Hecht, on a suitable manner with which to make his quietus. Hecht jestingly suggested that he walk into the sea at sunset, the perfect exit for a fallen hero. Gilbert, in an alcoholized state, stumbled into the Santa Monica surf at twilight and was rescued from drowning by a Coast Guard patrol. The incident was the seed for a scenario by Dorothy Parker and it is destined eventually to remain a recurring ground plan for a movie. After the first version directed by William Wellman had broken box-office records, there was a second directed by George Cukor with Judy Garland and James Mason.

The current modernization is only partial, if one looks closely. The setting is not 1937, but rather the hippie 1960s, as Miss Streisand's Albi hair and the song styles betray. Miss Streisand is throughout resolutely, even rambunctiously, her familiar self. A magnificent performer of her genre, she belts out her numbers and belts out her role as well. Her acting sometimes flares with an emotional force, but what is missing from her interpretation is the sense of heart-breaking vulnerability conveyed with such memorable pathos by Judy Garland and before her with fine delicacy by the wistful Janet Gaynor. Miss Streisand is so assured that one is certain she can take care of herself. Kristofferson, with his shabby beard, manly chest and buffalo bellow, is appropriate as her reckless extrovert partner. The initial material of this script has coarsened with repetition.

"Airport '77" (at the Emittance and the Cluny Écoles in English) is expansive hokum. If its stereotyped characters and situations fail to thrill you, they may make you laugh.

An affluent industrialist invites the press, his friends and his relatives to visit his Palm Beach residence, which is to be converted into an art museum on his 70th birthday. The guests and art treasures are to be transported to Florida on his private plane, a luxurious contraption. Treacherous members of the crew plot to hijack the craft and steer it to some remote West Indian island where they can make off with the priceless paintings. They take over soon after we are off the ground, but they are unable to operate the complicated machinery and the airplane crashes in Bermuda waters. Everyone aboard has a gruesome time of it.

"The Duellists" (at the Gaumont Champs-Élysées in English), a British import directed by Robert Stephens, is a handsomely photographed action film set against the scene of the Napoleonic Wars and revolving about demoniacal swordsmen. It is based on a Joseph Conrad story and, intelligently, has not sought to squeeze the contents of the original into a two-hour film. Indeed, its speed and its brevity are among its assets and its lively pace, visual beauty and the sustained quality of period atmosphere are especially refreshing after so many interminable, sluggish and clumsy super-productions. There is dazzle, too, to the acting by Albert Finney and Edward Fox as its principals.

Charles Bronson stars as Wild Bill Hickok in "The White Buffalo" (at the Publicis Maitzoon and the Danton in English). Wild Bill, it seems, suffers from anxiety dreams in which he persistently imagines he is being charged by an enraged white buffalo. Born too soon to consult Freud, he goes on the trail of such a beast, rumored to be roaming Indian territory. In the high reaches of the Black Mountains he encounters the Sioux chief, Crazy

Barbra Streisand in remake of "A Star Is Born."

Horse, and with his aid sets out to find the monster of his nightmares. This menacing buffalo is a curious creature. All his entrances are preceded by a landslide of thunderous proportions, but when he appears, he is in suddenly terrifying, resembling a heathen creature. All his entrances are preceded by a landslide of thunderous proportions, but when he appears, he is in suddenly terrifying, resembling a heathen creature. All his en-

Connecticut Makes the Archaeological Big Time

By Michael Knight

WASHINGTON DEPOT, Conn. (UPI).—Clear-cut evidence of human habitation in Connecticut far earlier than had previously been believed has been discovered in a field near the Shepaug River here.

The discovery of artifacts dating back 12,000 years represents just one small step for science, which is not likely to be very impressed, but is a giant leap for Connecticut, which has suffered for years with a reputation as an unrelieved archaeological backwater.

"You go to archaeological conventions and they seem amused when you say you're from Connecticut," said Dr. Roger Moeller, director of research for the American Indian Archaeological Institute. "First they smirk and then they say things like 'Find anything yet?' This will show them."

While Dr. Moeller, the director of the four-year-old institute here and archaeologist throughout the state is excited about the find, Connecticut Indians took the news more calmly.

"I'm not much interested in what happened 12,000 years ago," said Irving Harris, a state highway construction inspector who is chief of the Schaghticoke tribe, which once occupied the north-west corner of this state. "Years ago I thought all this stuff was just a bunch of baloney. But it'll help us in our court case, so I guess it'll come in handy."

54 Acres Returned

The Schaghticoke are suing a variety of local land owners for the return of reservation land they say was illegally taken away in the 18th century. The Connecticut Light and Power Co. has already agreed to return 54 acres to the tribe.

What Dr. Moeller and a team of 110 volunteers working in two-week shifts found was a single "clovis" type spear point, typical of those used by the hunters who followed the retreating glaciers north at the end of the last Ice Age. The stone points with their distinctive flutes were first made about 11,000 BC and were last made about 7,000 BC. The finding of the point, along with geological factors, dates the site at about 10,000 BC.

Hundreds of similar stone spearheads have been found at sites as old or older throughout the country. Earlier this summer, a site believed to show evidence of the oldest human habitation on the continent 16,000 years ago was unearthed in western Pennsylvania. But the oldest previous discovery in Connecticut about five years ago dated back to only 5,000 BC.

All of which explains why Dr. Moeller and his team were so excited and jumped up and down for joy when Andy Postman found the first half of the spear point, a piece of flint that had been laboriously chipped into its characteristic fluted shape. "It was just 45 minutes into their first day in the field and I'd just explained to the group the importance of finding things precisely in place so they could be mapped very precisely," Dr. Moeller recalled. "I'd just shown them the proper way to work with a trowel and described the sound a trowel makes when it scrapes against flint when I turned my back and I heard this ringing sound. It's a very distinctive sound. He picked this thing up between his thumb and forefinger and said 'Is this anything?' We found the other half about six inches away later in the day."

The dig site was chosen because of the large number of Indian artifacts that farmers had been plowing up there for 100 or more years and also because of indications that the field was once the confluence of a brook and the Shepaug River.

Archaeologists look for such confessions, Dr. Moeller said, "because they are natural campsites that attract people—even today, if I turned 20 people loose in the woods here and asked them to find the best campsite, I'd bet they all showed up where the brook meets the river."

The brook, however, has moved about 100 yards north over the centuries and the river has cut its way down the slope, away from the field. But five feet or so under the topsoil the old stream bed reappeared and on the top of the polished stones were hundreds of flint chips that wandering hands of Indians had tossed into the stream.

Along with the spear point the archaeologists found two miniature points, each less than an inch long. Such points are unknown in the study of paleo-Indian culture, Dr. Moeller said. "They could have been toys or decoration, or magic objects or status symbols or just for practice," he said. "I don't think anyone has ever found these before, so we don't know what they are."

The diggers also made another discovery, one that challenges the long-held archaeological conviction that Indians in the area traveled to the Hudson River Valley for flint for their and arrowheads.

"I've always been suspicious that theory," he said, "it is had to mean that the people traveled to the E or traded with people there that they knew they were going into a flint-free area a better take some flint along them."

"Well, just for a hunch, S. Post, who is one of the archaeologists here, went into the river on his lunch and in half an hour he came back with two large chert flint, washed down from mountain ridge somewhere all over the place. They have to go anywhere for a satisfied that the law of money and sufficiency has met by this explanation—explains the facts with the amount of explaining. Archaeologists, this is a pre deal."

Cancer Drug in Question

Scientists Examining the 'Placebo Effect'

By Jerry E. Bishop

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP-DJ).

The effectiveness of current drugs and new remedies may well be called into question as scientists seek to understand more about the placebo effect. Since the early 19th century the word placebo, Latin for "I shall please," has been used by the medical profession to describe almost any inactive substance or procedure used with a patient under the guise of an effective treatment. The patient believes in it, so it works. "From antiquity to this era of medical enlightenment, (the) placebo has been the single most potent and versatile tool for relieving the sufferings that man is heir to," says a report published last year in the proceedings of the Mayo Clinic. "Be it mother's kiss or voodoo drums, leeches, purgatives, poultices or snake oil, the wondrous effect of placebo therapy is undeniably evident."

In coming weeks, the placebo effect is likely to be the focus of one of the fiercest medical controversies going on in the United States—the battle over the use of Laetrile in treating cancer.

Laetrile, which is extracted from apricot pits, has been proclaimed by its proponents for more than two decades as an effective treatment against certain types of cancer. But the Food and Drug Administration has outlawed it from interstate shipment, asserting that there is no evidence that the drug affects cancers in test animals or man.

Whether Laetrile affects a tumor is the core of the controversy. But the battle is focusing on another point—the evidence that many cancer patients in a while, after undergoing Laetrile therapy. This apparently has persuaded several state legislatures to pass laws permitting cancer sufferers, particularly those in advanced stages, to take Laetrile if they choose to do so.

Laetrile's supporters claim that the improvement and pain relief results from the compound's physiological properties. But other physicians see placebo effect at work. They cite studies showing that 30 to 40 per cent of cancer patients experience pain relief when they take a placebo advertised to them as an analgesic (pain killer).

The "wondrous effect" of placebos was described in a recent article by Henry Byerly of the University of Arizona's philosophy department. Placebo, he wrote, can accomplish "real cures of real diseases... real cures of imaginary diseases... imaginary cures of real diseases... imaginary cures of imaginary diseases."

Even the color of a pill can have a placebo effect. British researchers who compared the effects of placebo and analgesics in treating arthritis pain reported three years ago that red placebos were more effective than blue or green ones. Yellow was the least effective color.

Expensive Tests
All of this is forcing researchers to carry out increasingly elaborate tests of new drugs and even surgical procedures—tests that can add millions of dollars to the cost of developing a treatment. Tests of new therapies now characteristically involve at least two groups of patients with one group getting the drug and the other a placebo. Neither the groups nor the researchers know which group is getting what until the test is completed.

The National Cancer Institute at one point suggested it might undertake a Laetrile human cancer patients (the agency now seems to be pulling off from such a commitment. If the NCI does conduct a Laetrile trial, it will be employed as a placebo.

Just why a completely inactive substance can have such powerful effects remains a mystery. Freudian-like theory traces the newborn infant's initial first relief from pain to mother's breast. Another traces it to "conditioning" kind espoused by psych B.F. Skinner; the patient is conditioned to expect improvement in his illness when he sees a doctor and gets a pill or treatment. Still another theory that the placebo triggers a self-hypnosis that can produce physiological changes.

Nancy Hanks, of U.S. Endowment For Arts, to Step Down in October

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (UPI).

Nancy Hanks, chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts for the past eight years, announced at the White House yesterday that she will step down when her second four-year term expires Oct. 2.

The $58,000-a-year post is considered the most powerful in the U.S. arts-funding establishment. With $114 million in grants to discriminate next year, Miss Hanks, 49, a skilled lobbyist and speechmaker, has seen its budget increase steadily from the $11-million outlay with which she began.

A Nixon appointee, she said she informed President Carter of her decision last Thursday after she had been summoned to the White House to discuss the future of the arts endowment.

Asked at a White House press conference yesterday if Mr. Carter offered her a third term, Miss Hanks said it never came to that. She said that she had made a personal decision "about a year ago" not to seek another.

The White House staff is likely to be screening potential non and a name will have to be to Capitol Hill soon to gear time for Senate confirmation.

Miss Hanks said the President told her he plans to meet confirmation deadline. If he no confirmation by Oct. 2, endowment's deputy chair Michael Straight, would be acting chairman.

Mr. Straight is considered potential nominee. Also under consideration are L. St. Clair Biddle Jr., an aide to Clatsone Pell, D-R.I.; Se Mayor was Uhlman; F Cooper, co-founder of Washington's Workshop for Career Arts, and composer-conductor Gunther Schuller, a member the endowment's National Advisory Council on the Arts.

PARIS AMUSEMENTS CINEMAS - THEATRES RESTAURANTS - NIGHT CLUBS

ELYSEES CINEMA o.v.
U.G.C. DANTON o.v.

From Warner Bros. A Warner Communications Company

UGC ERMITAGE o.v. / CLUNY ECOLES o.v.

FLIGHT 23 CRASHES IN BERMUDA TRIANGLE... PASSENGERS ALIVE, TRAPPED UNDERWATER...

AIRPORT '77

Le Roi de Cœur

has set up headquarters at the Résidence de la Reine Pédonne
Menu R. 52, service included—wine in the barrel as much as you want for Fr. 10.
Dinner 200 francs as of Fr. 25. DINNER DANCE every night.

In original version
GAUMONT CHAMPS-ÉLYSÉES 68 CHAMPS-ÉLYSÉES
GAUMONT RIVE GAUCHE / HAUTEFILLE
155 rue de RENNES 7 rue d'HAUTEFILLE

WORLD FAMOUS
ALL IS NEW AT THE LIDO
NEW LOCATION
116 BIS CHAMPS-ÉLYSÉES
NEW DECOR
WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL
NEW SPECTACULAR SHOW
NIGHTLY 10.30 PM & 0.30 AM of the
CABARET-RESTAURANT
NORMANDIE
DINNER-DANCE AT 8 PM.

WORLD FAMOUS
BAL DU MOULIN ROUGE
PLACE BLANCHE
LISSETTE MALIDOR
BOULEVARD
Extravaganza of the Rêve
MUSIC HALL PERFORMER
TAXI AND TIP INCLUDED
115 F
179 F
Dinner 100 francs and 1/2 bottle champagne or 2 drinks
DINNER-DANCE AT 8.30 p.m.
THE SHOW AT 10.30 p.m.
RESERVATIONS: 066.00.19 or 71.62

UNIQUE IN PARIS
If you are in the mood for music as good as extremely fine cooking, then
YOU ARE INVITED TO
BISTRO D'ISA
JIMMY WALTER at the piano accompanying the Blues Singer
CATHERINE PHILIPPE GÉRARD
Res.: 950.58.52, 2 R. St-Benoit - G.

Watch for this feature
every
MONDAY, WEDNESDAY AND FRIDAY

THE MOST RENOWNED AND LARGEST TAX FREE SHOPPING IN PARIS

234 Rue de Rivoli, Paris-1er.
Creator of the perfume and toilet water
LIZ D. LIZ

which has been a sensational world wide success, have opened a new exclusive shop near Arc de Triomphe at 42 Avenue Kléber, Paris-16e
where in 400 square metres you will find an immense choice of perfumes—all brands including the latest, and a large selection of novelties, gifts, lighters, costume jewelry and ready-to-wear.
And the same thing in their "Boutiques Prestige" in the biggest and best hotels of Paris.

MERIDIAN HOTEL
SHERATON HOTEL
PLM ST. JACQUES HOTEL
SOPHISTE
SUFFRAN LA TOUR
DUTY FREE PRICES

9. Homesick.

(A good reason to call home.)

An international call is the next best thing to being there.

Through Service 800

For more information call 1-800-800-8000
London 723 5822, Geneva 91 71 71, Frankfurt 23 45 1
Amsterdam 47 20 98

Now your international customers can dial you toll-free from—Zurich, Geneva, Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Barcelona, Brussels, London, Madrid and Bahrain.

مكتبة لادن

Board New for Aid

Rules Lending Loans

Part Rowen

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP)—The directors of the Monetary Fund today approved a new supplementary facility to help countries who face serious payments deficits, under the rules under which money will be loaned.

The new facility, agreed to by the Western and oil-rich nations in Paris, will become known as the "new facility" after IMF director H.J. Witte-said Kuwait had introduced $450 million (about $175.5 million) to the number of countries. A loan from the IMF, bringing total funds to a five-year period, the IMF said.

countries will use the money to pay the interest on the loans, which will be repaid by the countries in the form of goods and services.

The IMF said it would use the money to pay the interest on the loans, which will be repaid by the countries in the form of goods and services.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

VW Sales Up 12% in First Half

Volkswagen's world sales in the first half totaled 12,948 billion deutsche marks, up 12 per cent from 11,115 billion DM in the first half of 1976. The company, which did not report any earnings figures, attributes the gain to sales abroad. Foreign sales were up 28 per cent in the period to 5.3 billion DM while domestic sales rose 3 per cent to 7.6 billion DM. Unit sales were up 5 per cent in the half to 1.19 million vehicles. Volume sold abroad was up 30 per cent to 459,000 units while domestic sales fell 2 per cent to 731,000 units. Capital spending totaled 687 million DM in the first half, up 23 per cent from 552 million DM in the 1976 period.

Zenith Sees Lower Profits

Zenith Radio Corp. expects profits in the third quarter and in the second half of 1977 to be "significantly below" year-ago levels because of a "very adverse effect" that sales promotional allowances will have on earnings. The firm says that to maintain its relative price position in an intensely competitive television market and avoid a building in field inventories, it has made available significant sales promotion allowances to its distributors. In the second half of 1976, the company earned $24 million, or $1.24 a share. It earned 51 cents a share in last year's third quarter.

GTE Forecasts Higher Profits

General Telephone & Electronics expects per share earnings for 1977 to rise to more than $3.50 from $3.29 in 1976. Chairman Theodore Brophy calls analysts' estimates that the company will earn $3.75 per share this year "a conservative figure" and John J. Douglas, vice-chairman, adds, "If you take a range of $3.75 to $3.85, the upper half of that range would be a good estimate." The estimates assume the value of the Canadian dollar will not change much for the remainder of the year. For the first half of 1977, per share earnings were $1.89, up 34 per cent from a year earlier. But without gains from foreign currency translation the increase would have been only 14 per cent, Mr. Brophy notes. Earnings from telephone operations will "show improvement" over last year's $410.3 million. Mr. Brophy says. Manufacturing income also will show an increase over last year, when it totaled $82.03 million. Mr. Brophy adds. There will be "a substantial reduction" in the $16-million loss reported by the consumer electronics products group last year although there still will be a loss, he says.

Ford Sees Stable Sales in U.S.

Ford Motor predicts that 1978 model-year industrywide car and truck sales in the United States, including imports, "should be at least as strong as in the 1977 model-year"—when a total of 14.6 million vehicles were sold. Ford also predicts its 1978 model-year car and truck sales would rise 10 per cent to 2.7 million. The industry forecast is not as optimistic as that made last week by General Motors, which forecast U.S. new car and truck sales, including imports, to reach 14.8 million units in the Oct. 1 model year. The GM forecast represents a 6.3-per-cent gain from this year and a 4-per-cent gain over the 1975 record of 14.9 million vehicles.

Toyota to Increase Capital Outlays

Toyota Motor Co. plans to increase capital spending to 165 billion yen (about $618 million) in the current fiscal year ending next June. President Eiji Toyota says this is nearly 50-per-cent larger than the 115 billion yen spent in the previous fiscal year. Of the total, 49 billion will be used for factory expansion and streamlining facilities.

Despite U.S. Troop Withdrawal

Investment Climate Bullish in South Korea

SEOUL, Aug. 30 (AP)—

The planned withdrawal of U.S. ground combat forces from the Korean peninsula in four to five years is beginning to shift attention to South Korea's economic performance and prospects. One reason is that South Korea's economy must do well if the country is to shoulder a larger share of its defense burden without straining the civilian economy. The second reason is that businessmen, bankers, and others wonder what effect the pullout will have on current and future investment.

The consensus, so far, is decidedly bullish. Foreign manufacturers or banks with operations in South Korea tend to accentuate the positive in reporting to their boards of directors on the investment climate here, but even allowing for this there are no signs that foreigners are shying away from doing business in South Korea.

This country's economy has been one of the fastest-growing in the world during the past decade, averaging nearly 11 per cent real growth a year. Last year its gross national product jumped 15.3 per cent to $25 billion.

Assessments like the one recently voiced by Dow Chemical's president, Zoltan Merszel, are increasingly common. After a visit to South Korea, and after the Carter pullout plan had been announced, Mr. Merszel said: "We feel that (South) Korea offers us the opportunity and the return on investment we're seeking, so we think Korea is a good place for Dow." The company has two major chemical projects now under way in South Korea with a combined value of more than $250 million. Both are scheduled to begin operating in 1979, and a company official here says they are "on schedule."

Also on schedule is the country's fourth five-year economic plan. This is the first year of the plan, and Economic Planning Board officials say the projected 1977 growth rate of 10 per cent will be achieved. The planners have raised their original 1977 export target to $10.3 billion from $10 billion and their import projection to $10.6 billion from $10.3 billion.

If present estimates hold up, South Korea's current account will be almost exactly in balance this year, several years ahead of the World Bank prediction.

One barometer of future export performance, letters of credit, surged 23 per cent in June over a year earlier. Buoyed by such results, the Economic Planning Board has raised its estimate of foreign-exchange reserves to $4.1 billion by year-end, up from its original estimate of $3.7 billion and up from $3 billion at the end of last year.

In fact, this is an embarrassment of riches. "A major problem," Deputy Premier Nam Duck Woo says, "is that the money supply is increasing very fast due to cash flow from outside. We have to be very cautious about a possible excess of money supply and ensuing inflation."

The money supply climbed 34 per cent in the first half of 1977 over the corresponding period of 1976, and it is expected to grow by 28 per cent this full year, up from an initial forecast of a 25 per cent increase.

One step the government has taken to slow down the cash inflow is to prohibit certain loans to South Koreans by foreign banks. According to official figures, consumer prices are rising at an annual rate of about 10 per cent and some economists concede that the rate may be closer to 12 or 13 per cent.

Despite the problems, foreign investors continue to crowd Seoul business offices. The American Chamber of Commerce here says that in the first six months of 1977 it received inquiries from 85 companies about investment opportunities in South Korea, up from fewer than 30 in the year earlier period.

"There is a great interest by foreigners in investing in Korea because of the demonstrated and persistent growth and for the profits they can make," says the chamber's president, Richard Whit, who also directs Union Carbide's operation in South Korea. Du Pont plans to open a liaison office in Seoul later this month to study investment opportunities and promote its exports. Foreign banks have also been initiating or expanding operations here.

Thirteen foreign banks now operate in Seoul, and applications from several more are being considered by the South Korean Finance Ministry.

Kim Duk Choong, president of Daewoo Industrial Co., one of South Korea's largest companies, is unperturbed about the U.S. troop withdrawal. "Foreign investors I have talked to say, 'so what?'," he says. "Businessmen are very realistic. They're worried about return on equity. Who is leaving? More are coming."

Grain Firm Posts a Loss Of $81 Million

Commodity Trading Said to Have Soured

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 30 (AP)—Troubled grain merchant Cook Industries Inc. which reportedly lost heavily in speculation in the soybean futures market (IHT, July 15), reported yesterday a net loss of $81.1 million for fiscal 1977 ended May 31.

For fiscal 1976, Cook reported net income of $22.2 million, or $5.95 a share. Revenue for fiscal 1977 dropped to $367.5 million from $415.9 million in fiscal 1976.

For the fourth quarter, Cook reported a net loss of $53.6 million on revenue of $92.6 million. This compares with net income of $20.2 million, or $5.41 a share, on revenue of $147.7 million in the year-earlier quarter.

The results for the 1977 year and quarter reflect a poor trading, pre-tax gain of $12.7 million from the sale of the company's Galveston, Texas, grain elevator and a corporate aircraft. The 1976 results have been restated to reflect the discontinuance of Cook's E. L. Bruce Co. subsidiary.

Cook's Agriproducts Group, which includes the grain, cotton, and processing and refining divisions, was the big loser. It reported a pre-tax loss of $91.3 million for fiscal 1977, compared with a pre-tax profit of $19.2 million for fiscal 1976.

The company's Riverside Chemical Co. subsidiary, which it is selling, had pre-tax earnings of $708,000 for the year, down from $1.8 million the prior year. The decrease was due to tight market conditions, the company said.

Cook said it has aggregate commitments of $280 million for short-term credit from a credit agreement with 23 banks. On Aug. 7, Cook said its commitments totaled $270 million.

A Correction

The headline on the French retail price increase report (IHT, Aug. 30) erroneously stated the month as June, rather than July, as made clear in the text.

Leading Index, New Orders Drop

Indicator's Fall Is Third in Row

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (Reuters)—In two negative reports on the U.S. economy today, the Commerce Department said the index of leading indicators fell 0.2 per cent in July following identical declines the two previous months.

While new orders received by manufacturers fell by 3 per cent in July, the index of components available for inclusion in the index declined and four advanced.

The Commerce Department said the index stood at 129.7 per cent of its 1967 average, 3.2 per cent above July, 1976.

Three consecutive months of decline fulfill an informal interpretive rule holding that such a movement in a new direction signals a turnaround in general economic activity.

But the index fell for three months or more in 1962 and 1966 without signaling a recession, although growth did weaken.

And even one of the index designers, economist Victor Zarnowitz of the University of Chicago, has said that although three straight drops would be a serious development, he sees no recession in the offing.

The Commerce Department said that of the components contributing to the decline, the change in sensitive wholesale prices was the biggest contributor, showing a 0.2-per-cent drop.

The index is subject to substantial revision. Today's report includes only 10 of the 12 individual components which make up the composite, and addition of the two missing components could wipe out the decline.

The Commerce Department said the composite index of lagging indicators fell 0.3 per cent for July after a 1.7 per cent rise in June and now stands at 126 per cent of its 1967 average. That is 4 per cent ahead of a year earlier.

Total economic output, or gross national product, grew by annual rates of 7.5 per cent and 6.1 per cent in the first and second quarters, respectively, and is expected to drop to about 4.5 per cent in the current quarter.

But most economists, including those within the Carter administration, expect growth to pick up again in the fourth quarter and average 5.3 per cent next year.

Drop in Orders
New orders received by manufacturers dropped $3.3 billion, or 3 per cent, in July to a seasonally adjusted $108.3 billion, the Commerce Department said.

The drop compared with an increase of $9 million in June. The department also reported that shipments, which had gained 1.3 per cent in June, fell $1.4 billion or 1.3 per cent to $109.5 billion.

Inventories rose $1 billion, or 0.5 per cent, to $174.3 billion. Inventories had risen 0.7 per cent in June.

The department said the drop in new orders was concentrated in the durable goods sector, where orders fell $3 billion, or 6.1 per cent, to $55.6 billion after a 1-per-cent decline in June.

The drop represented an upward revision from a decline originally reported as 4.4 per cent in last week's durable goods orders report.

Orders in the nondurable sector were off $300 million or 0.6 per cent to $52.8 billion. Orders had risen 1.2 per cent in June.

Productivity Drop
WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP).—Productivity of American workers declined at an annual rate of 1.4 per cent in the second quarter, the Labor Department reported today.

Productivity is the amount of output per hour worked and is a measure of how well the economy is functioning.

Cost-of-Living Index Drops in W. Germany

WIESBADEN, West Germany, Aug. 30 (AP)—The preliminary West German cost-of-living index fell 0.1 per cent in August from July but was up 3.8 per cent from August 1976, the Federal Statistics Office said here today.

The index stood at 147 in July, up 4.3 per cent from July 1976, but down 0.1 per cent from June.

Company Report

Revenue, Profits in Millions
Winn-Dixie Stores
Fourth Quarter	1977	1976
Revenue	$80.80	$74.10
Profits	16.00	17.10
Per Share	0.76	0.81
Revenue	$3,956.70	$3,265.90
Profits	70.40	62.00
Per Share	3.22	3.01

Indian Statistics Bureau Chance of Recession

By Robert Trumbull

NEW DELHI, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Indian economic status referred yesterday by a Canadian Statistics Canada, gloomy assessment in a decline in gross national product for the third quarter this year, could a record trade deficit in the August.

Output of goods and $202.5 billion in the first of this year representing 0.6 per cent from 3 quarter after adjustment for price changes, according to the agency. It also reported a trade deficit of $6.5 billion in the second quarter.

International value of the dollar, meanwhile, again fell 93 U.S. cents, adding gloomily outlook for the year.

Quarters of declines in notwithstanding, Statistics Canada asserted, "It is too great that the economy is into recession, although current economic conditions are not expansionary and cannot be ruled out."

They linked the poor state of the economy to personal spending by Canadian in turn was at least partly to the purchasing power of the Canadian dollar lost in the fueling of the Canadian dollar.

Statistics Canada report a decrease of 3.8 per cent in corporate profit indicator, however, was 1 per cent for the last 12 months taken together, unusually heavy first-quarter to the United States of American shortages on especially severe workers' wealth and income been reduced in real higher importer prices," stated in a reference with which the effects of the devaluation "made themselves felt."

Export Contracts in Japan Show Decline of 32 Per Cent

TOKYO, Aug. 30 (AP)—

Export contracts in July at Japan's 14 major trading houses totaled 787.5 billion yen ($2.9 billion), down 32.3 per cent from the 1.16 trillion yen in June and down 2.1 per cent from 804.4 billion yen in July, 1976, the Japan Foreign Trade Council announced today.

Import contracts in the month also fell 16 per cent from the prior month's 790.9 billion yen and were down 24.4 per cent from the year earlier month's 856.1 billion yen to total 664.2 billion yen.

Export contracts in June were very high at 1.16 trillion yen with the year-to-year increase showing a large 39.8 per cent. However, import contracts in the same month fell 30 per cent from the year-earlier month to total 790.9 billion yen.

Export contracts to the United States were down 15.7 per cent from June and down 19.4 per cent from July 1976, while import contracts from the United States were down 21.7 per cent from June and down 28.5 per cent from the year-earlier month.

Export contracts to West European nations were down 23.8 per cent from June but up 14.4 per cent from the year-earlier month.

Meanwhile, vehicle exports for July totaled 378,040 units, up 4.8 per cent from 360,644 units in June and up 14.7 per cent from 329,511 units in the year-earlier month.

The Japan Automobile Manufacturers Association, announcing this today, said passenger car exports in July totaled 258,372 units, or a 4.7-per-cent increase from the prior month and up 12.4 per cent from a year earlier.

The association also said motorcycle exports for July totaled 318,598 units, up 4.3 per cent from 305,385 units in the prior month and up by 33.1 per cent from the year-earlier month's 299,370 units. In another report today the Finance Ministry revised its figures for the balance of payments for July to show a surplus of $937 million, up from surpluses of $899 million in June and $721 million in July, 1976.

The current account posted a surplus of $1,554 billion, up from $857 million in June and $410 million in July a year earlier.

The July trade surplus, unchanged from the preliminary report, totaled a monthly record high of $2.05 billion, up from $1.48 billion in the prior month and $998 million in July, 1976.

A preliminary report (IHT, Aug. 18) had set the payments surplus at $840 million and the current account surplus at $1.53 billion.

We take pleasure in announcing that has been elected Vice-President of E.F. Hutton and Company Inc. New York.
Mr. Michel Flandrin

E.F. Hutton
INTERNATIONAL

ATHENS • BRUSSELS • FRANKFURT • GENEVA • HAMBURG • LONDON • LUGANO • LUXEMBURG • MUNICH • PARIS

ENAGAS EMPRESA NACIONAL DEL GAS, S.A.

U.S. $100,000,000
MEDIUM TERM LOAN

INSTITUTO NACIONAL DE INDUSTRIA -INI-

- MANAGED BY
- | | |
|--|---|
| CITICORP INTERNATIONAL GROUP | BANK OF MONTREAL |
| BANK OF AMERICA N.T. & S.A. | BANCO DE BILBAO, S.A. |
| BANQUE NATIONALE DE PARIS | CHASE MANHATTAN LIMITED |
| BANQUE URQUIJO HISPANO AMERICANO LIMITED | COMPAGNIE FINANCIERE DE LA DEUTSCHE BANK AG |
- PROVIDED BY
- | | |
|---|--------------------------------|
| BANK OF MONTREAL | CITIBANK, N.A. |
| BANK OF AMERICA N.T. & S.A. | THE CHASE MANHATTAN BANK, N.A. |
| COMPAGNIE FINANCIERE DE LA DEUTSCHE BANK AG | BANQUE NATIONALE DE PARIS |
- GRINDLAY BRANDTS LIMITED
- | | |
|---|---|
| BANCO DE BILBAO, S.A. | THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA |
| SAUDI INTERNATIONAL BANK | CHANNEL ISLANDS LIMITED |
| AL-BANK AL-SAUDI AL-ALAMI LIMITED | THE MITSUBISHI BANK, LIMITED |
| THE MITSUBISHI BANK LIMITED | TORONTO DOMINION BANK |
| AMSTERDAM ROTTERDAM BANK NV | BANQUE CANADIENNE NATIONALE (EUROPE) |
| COOPERATIVE CENTRALE RAIFFEISEN | THE DAI-ICHI KANGYO BANK, LTD. |
| BOERENLEENBANK B.A. (CENTRALE RABOBANK) | THE LONG-TERM CREDIT BANK OF JAPAN, LIMITED |
| THE FIDELITY BANK (FRANCE) | SOCIETE GENERALE |
| THE SAITAMA BANK, LTD. | TOKAI BANK NEDERLAND N.V. |
| SOCIETE GENERALE DE BANQUE S.A. | BANCO HISPANO AMERICANO |
| WESTERN AMERICAN BANK (EUROPE) LIMITED | BANCO URQUIJO S.A. |
| BANCO DE VIZCAYA S.A. | CREDIT SUISSE |
| SOCIETE GENERALE DE BANQUE EN ESPAGNE | SOFIS LIMITED |

CITICORP INTERNATIONAL BANK LIMITED
AGENT

1. Chlorophyll a and Chlorophyll b were determined by the method of Arar and Collins (1971) using a Shimadzu 1010 UV-Visible Spectrophotometer.

1. Staphylococcus aureus (ATCC 12228) was grown in tryptic soy broth (TSB) (Difco, Franklin Lakes, NJ, USA) at 37 °C for 24 h. The cells were washed with phosphate buffered saline (PBS) (pH 7.4) and resuspended in PBS. The cell suspension was adjusted to a concentration of 1×10^8 cells/ml.

With Two Steals in One Game Brook Surpasses Cobb's Mark

KER—Lou Brock is safe stealing second for a breaking Ty Cobb's record set 49 years ago.

PHY—Cardinals' manager Vern Rapp helps Brock the base he swiped to set the new record.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 30 (AP).—Lou Brock last night cemented his standing as the best base-stealer in major league baseball's history. Afterward, he gave some advice to younger players who might some day rewrite his records.

"You have to learn to play in pain, you have to want to steal, you have to be daring, and you have got to get out there and challenge people," the St. Louis Cardinals great said after stealing the 892nd and 893rd bases of his career, first to tie and then to break Ty Cobb's long-standing record.

Brock equaled the 49-year-old mark in the first inning of the Cardinals' 4-3 loss to San Diego, then broke it with his 893rd career theft in the seventh.

In the first inning, he walked, then stole second on the first pitch. In the seventh, he grounded into a fielder's choice, then again stole on the first pitch.

Both thefts came against Padre pitcher Dave Freisleben and both times the throw of catcher Dave Roberts was too wide for the San Diego infielder to make the put-out.

The record Cobb called his greatest was rewritten by a base-runner who admits he slides wrong most of the time.

"I go into the base the wrong way 99 per cent of the time," Brock remarked. "You're supposed to get the body low, like on the back slide, to make the fielder bend down to tag you. I use a bent-leg, pop-up slide, go in a little higher."

Brock, 38 and in his 16th full season in the majors, already held most of the base-stealing records, including the mark of 118 thefts in a season that he established three years ago.

A soft-spoken, reserved individual who is a vivid contrast to the fiery and temperamental Cobb, Brock said his biggest concern as he slid in with his record steal was whether he had hurt San Diego shortstop Bill Almon.

"There really weren't any other thoughts going through my mind at that moment. I just looked down to dust myself off, then I looked up and everybody was grabbing my hand."

"I think it should not be remembered as an evening when Lou Brock stole a base to set a record," he told the crowd of 9,556, "but as an evening in which the record of a tremendous ball-player was surpassed."

The Cosmos' Ultimate Triumph

Mob Scenes, Silliness for U.S. Soccer Champions

By Alex Yannis

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (NYT).—Approximately 5,000 fans mobbed the New York Cosmos when the club arrived home last night on a chartered plane from Portland, Ore., where they had won the championship of the North American Soccer League.

The fans shouted, "Cosmos! Cosmos! Cosmos!" and "We're No. 1!"

When Werner Roth, the team captain, held up the NASL trophy, the crowd surged forward, and the players ran—as if for their lives.

Giorgio Chinaglia, who scored the winning goal in the 2-1 victory over the Seattle Sounders on Sunday, received the key to Englewood, N.J., from the mayor of that city, where the Italian soccer master lives.

Only a few hours after the Cosmos had added the U.S. championship to Pele's career, coach Eddie Firmani and the team's board of directors met in Portland Sunday night to discuss what to conquer next.

The directors decided to bid for the right to host the league's championship game next year. All indications are that the bid will be approved at the league meetings early in October.

A second subject was Pele, the Brazilian star, who has announced his retirement and who said that he spoke to Steve Ross and other members of the board after the team's celebration party.

"They asked me how much money I wanted to stay and play," the 36-year-old "king of soccer" said shortly after boarding the club's plane to New York. "I told them I would like to work for the Cosmos and the organization, but I did not want to play."

"I always told you I wanted to finish while at the top, and that's where I am now," he said with a grin.

At the team celebration Sunday night, players, coaches and others let their emotions surface, and the most boyish—perhaps the silliest—was Pele. He was kissing and hugging strangers and on a couple of occasions pouring drinks on friends. He sang and jumped and yelled. When he finally sat down, he lifted the NASL trophy with both hands and started to shout: "Cosmos! Cosmos! Cosmos!"

His teammates, who had often blindly heeded his orders and suggestions, shunned his guidance this time and joined friends and others in shouting: "Pele! Pele! Pele!"

"You know," the Brazilian said, leaning over to a friend's shoulder as if to whisper a secret, "I feel like a baby, like a baby that wants to cry."

"You cried this afternoon," he was told, "at the stadium, when all those people were carrying you on their shoulders."

"That was good," he said. "It felt like winning the World Cup."

On Sunday, a short while after Chinaglia had scored the goal that gave the Cosmos a 2-1 victory over the Sounders, Pele had said:

"I am very happy. God has been kind to me. Three World Cups and now a championship in America. I can die now."

A day later he was sitting on the plane, the NASL trophy propped on a seat directly in front of him, and he felt like talking.

He spoke of what he planned to do after his farewell game, an exhibition between the Cosmos and Santos of Brazil on Oct. 1 at the Cosmos' home field in East Rutherford, N.J. Those plans include possible public-relations work in Europe for the Cosmos, scouting and helping the team with a little bit of coaching—but, he said, "for three months during the year only." Further, he has written the script and will do a movie in Brazil.

Changing his mind once—in deciding to play here—was enough for Pele. He seemed determined not to change plans again.

"I am closing my playing career with a golden key," he said.

German Unimpressed
FRANKFURT, Aug. 30 (Reuters).—Helmut Schoen, coach of the World Cup champions, West Germany, said yesterday that soccer in the United States still had a long way to go before it reached the level of the game in Europe.

After watching the NASL final televised here, he said, "Soccer in North America has not progressed all that far."

Schoen said he had not been disappointed by the standard of play in the match "because I had not expected any more."

"We will just have to wait and see how soccer gets on in North America. You don't do that by bringing over aging stars like Pele and filling the stadium. A start has to be made by building up soccer in the schools. If you don't do that, you'll remain at the children's stage forever."

Dibbs, Orantes in U.S. Pro Tennis Final

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 30 (UPI).—Fourth-seed Eddie Dibbs, relying on his patented baseline game, yesterday advanced to the finals of the 50th U.S. Professional tennis championships with a 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5 victory over Poland's Wojtek Fibak.

Dibbs will face third-seed Manuel Orantes of Spain tomorrow night in the finals at the century-old Longwood Cricket Club.

Dibbs took control of his semi-final match in the third set. Fibak was two points away from breaking the little Floridian's service with the score at 3-1, but Dibbs roared back to defeat.

Dibbs then proceeded to reel off four straight games, including two more breaks, and won, 6-2.

The clincher came in the fourth set with Fibak serving at 3-5. Twice he had Dibbs on the verge of capitulating, but he hit an overhead and a drop shot into the net to go all behind 15-40 and was subsequently broken.

Orantes won 13 straight games—16 of the last 17—in his romp over Chile's Jaime Pillot, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1. The Spaniard, an acknowledged master on clay, fell only 3-2 before sweeping the best 13 games.

Orantes' patient baseline game had been no match for the gambling Pillot when the Chilean charged the net successfully in beating Orantes last week in the quarterfinals of the Canadian Open in Toronto.

Pillot tried the same technique yesterday but Orantes, with his wide assortment of shots, took advantage of Pillot's aggressiveness and smug him repeatedly with blistering passing shots. Orantes also used four drop shots, all for winners, in his easy victory.

Vilas' 39th Straight
HARRISON, N.Y., Aug. 30 (AP).—Guillermo Vilas staged another great performance in winning his sixth straight tournament, crushing Ilie Nastase 6-2, 6-0 last night in the final of the $25,000 Tennis Week Open round-robin tournament at the Westchester Country Club here.

The one-sided victory raised Vilas' winning streak on clay surfaces to 39. But the Argentine star realized that all of the victories aren't worth anything if he doesn't win at the U.S. Open, which starts tomorrow at Forest Hills.

"The 39 in a row is no pressure to me," said Vilas. "I prefer to keep winning, of course, and I hope to continue doing so at the U.S. Open."

The 25-year-old Argentine, who may be the hottest player in the world, is seeded fourth for the Open. This year he has won the French Open and six U.S. tournaments in the process of putting together his streak.

His very well kept winning. The Open is played on a Har-Tru surface, which plays similarly to clay.

However, Vilas still faces a tough road. There's always Bjorn Borg, the tournament's No. 1 seed and this year's Wimbledon champion—not to mention a hurting but determined Jimmy Connors, the defending champion and No. 2 seed.

Britain's Virginia Wade, the Wimbledon champion, is seeded third although at London she scored a 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Chris Evert, the No. 1 seed among women at Forest Hills.

Evert, the 22-year-old defending champion, bids for her third consecutive Open title. Martina Navratilova, who had the best winning percentage in the recently conducted pro tennis team season, has replaced Evonne Cawley as the No. 2 seed. Cawley recently gave birth to her first child and will not compete.

surface, which plays similarly to clay.

However, Vilas still faces a tough road. There's always Bjorn Borg, the tournament's No. 1 seed and this year's Wimbledon champion—not to mention a hurting but determined Jimmy Connors, the defending champion and No. 2 seed.

Britain's Virginia Wade, the Wimbledon champion, is seeded third although at London she scored a 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Chris Evert, the No. 1 seed among women at Forest Hills.

Evert, the 22-year-old defending champion, bids for her third consecutive Open title. Martina Navratilova, who had the best winning percentage in the recently conducted pro tennis team season, has replaced Evonne Cawley as the No. 2 seed. Cawley recently gave birth to her first child and will not compete.

However, Vilas still faces a tough road. There's always Bjorn Borg, the tournament's No. 1 seed and this year's Wimbledon champion—not to mention a hurting but determined Jimmy Connors, the defending champion and No. 2 seed.

Britain's Virginia Wade, the Wimbledon champion, is seeded third although at London she scored a 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Chris Evert, the No. 1 seed among women at Forest Hills.

Evert, the 22-year-old defending champion, bids for her third consecutive Open title. Martina Navratilova, who had the best winning percentage in the recently conducted pro tennis team season, has replaced Evonne Cawley as the No. 2 seed. Cawley recently gave birth to her first child and will not compete.

However, Vilas still faces a tough road. There's always Bjorn Borg, the tournament's No. 1 seed and this year's Wimbledon champion—not to mention a hurting but determined Jimmy Connors, the defending champion and No. 2 seed.

Britain's Virginia Wade, the Wimbledon champion, is seeded third although at London she scored a 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Chris Evert, the No. 1 seed among women at Forest Hills.

Evert, the 22-year-old defending champion, bids for her third consecutive Open title. Martina Navratilova, who had the best winning percentage in the recently conducted pro tennis team season, has replaced Evonne Cawley as the No. 2 seed. Cawley recently gave birth to her first child and will not compete.

However, Vilas still faces a tough road. There's always Bjorn Borg, the tournament's No. 1 seed and this year's Wimbledon champion—not to mention a hurting but determined Jimmy Connors, the defending champion and No. 2 seed.

Britain's Virginia Wade, the Wimbledon champion, is seeded third although at London she scored a 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Chris Evert, the No. 1 seed among women at Forest Hills.

Evert, the 22-year-old defending champion, bids for her third consecutive Open title. Martina Navratilova, who had the best winning percentage in the recently conducted pro tennis team season, has replaced Evonne Cawley as the No. 2 seed. Cawley recently gave birth to her first child and will not compete.

However, Vilas still faces a tough road. There's always Bjorn Borg, the tournament's No. 1 seed and this year's Wimbledon champion—not to mention a hurting but determined Jimmy Connors, the defending champion and No. 2 seed.

Britain's Virginia Wade, the Wimbledon champion, is seeded third although at London she scored a 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Chris Evert, the No. 1 seed among women at Forest Hills.

Evert, the 22-year-old defending champion, bids for her third consecutive Open title. Martina Navratilova, who had the best winning percentage in the recently conducted pro tennis team season, has replaced Evonne Cawley as the No. 2 seed. Cawley recently gave birth to her first child and will not compete.

Independence Ousted, Sverige Loses 3d Race

By Steve Cady

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 30 (NYT).—Sail numbers U.S. 28 and KA-5 yesterday moved closer to an America's Cup showdown. This country's Courageous knocked Independence out of the defense trials and the Australia sailed to her third straight victory over Sverige of Sweden.

If Australia, which has not lost in these final trials, can beat Sverige again today, the new "people's boat" will challenge either Courageous or Enterprise for the cup in a four-of-seven series that begins Sept. 13. The way the Swedes have been ignoring basic match-racing tactics, it will take a miracle to keep them from joining Ted Hood and the men of Independence on the sidelines. Sverige lost yesterday by 50 seconds after once more having thrown away an early lead.

Independence, one of two new 12-meters competing with three-year-old Courageous for the role of defender, was cut from the final trials yesterday afternoon after having lost for the fourth straight time to her older rival. The margin this time was 1 minute 23 seconds—nearly 200 yards.

Somber Mood
Ted Turner, the flamboyant skipper of Courageous, found nothing to gloat about in the demise of Hood's team. The two yachts are part of the same Kings Point Maritime Academy Syndicate, and Turner took the dismissal somberly.

When the New York Yacht Club's selection committee pulled up alongside the dock at Bannister's Wharf in a sport-fishing boat to thank Hood for his efforts, Turner watched the traditional "burial" service quietly. Apparently near tears, the 38-year-old millionaire tugged absently at his mustache as Hood smilingly accepted the shakes of the formally attired committee members.

"I really don't have anything to say," said Turner, the man at the rival Enterprise syndicate has characterized as "the mouth" in campaign buttons distributed around town.

There was irony as well as the usual disappointment in the dockside ceremony that brought a typical stiff-upper-lip "round of hip hip burras" for Hood from his crewmen. It had been assumed that Independence, the Hood-designed, Hood-skipped boat that carries sail number U.S. 28, would be faster than her older stablemate. She wasn't. Yesterday's result lifted the Courageous won-lost record in the final trials to 5-1 and dropped Independence to 3-3. Enterprise stands at 4-7. Throughout the summerlong series of trials, Independence innamated to win two races in a row only once, on July 22.

"We didn't think we'd be cut this soon," said Hood, a 50-year-old sailmaker from Marblehead, Mass. "But I guess they wanted to narrow it down to one boat from each syndicate."

Separate Efforts
Though Hood's men and Turner's men ate at the same training table here and lived in the same dormitory at Salve Regina College, the two efforts were separate. Turner put $250,000 of his own money into the syndicate, and there will be no switching of crew members.

Courageous now faces Enterprise only, and the consensus is that it won't be long before that rival also is cut and Courageous is selected.

Yesterday's race, sailed in choppy seas in a strong 18-knot southwest breeze, was a beauty until Courageous drew away on the second windward leg. Just before the start, Independence had to tack away to clear air. But the race was almost dead even on the first leg until Turner squeezed his boat up to windward and forced Hood to tack, about half an hour after the start. Courageous led by only nine seconds at the first mark and by only 19 at the third.

WHAT IS IT?—That mysterious matter behind Australia is spinnaker it lost while defeating Sverige.

Twins Win, Increase Gap Over Boston to 3

BRK, Aug. 30 (UPI).—Chris Chambliss, hit #11 at-bats, slammed a homer in the eighth inning to rally the New York Yankees to a 5-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

The Yankees, who moved into second place in the American League East, led the Red Sox 5-3 in the eighth inning.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

Chambliss' home run was the Yankees' first since Aug. 15, when they won 4-3 over the Red Sox. The Yankees had been losing to the Red Sox in four of their last five games.

of Rudy May and lead the Orioles to a 6-1 defeat of Nolan Ryan and California.

Indians 3, White Sox 2
At Cleveland, Andre Thornton hit a pair of homers and Duane Kuiper and Bruce Bochte also had solo blasts to power the Indians to a 3-2 rout of Chicago behind the six-hit pitching of Rick Waits.

Twins 7, Blue Jays 6
Twins 6, Blue Jays 5
At Bloomington, Minn., Larry Hise, who had four hits in the opener, drove in a run with his third single of the night in the sixth inning and Ryan Mania followed with a sacrifice fly to lift the Twins to a 6-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays for a sweep of their double header.

The Twins, who moved into second place in the American League West, 2-1 games behind Kansas City, had won the opener 7-6 on Bob Gernski's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning.

The Twins made six double plays in the first game—one short of the "major league" record.

Expos 7, Reds 2
In the National League, at Montreal, ex-Cincinnati star Tony Perez drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a single to help the Expos win, 7-2, snapping the Reds' five-game winning streak.

Perez hit his 15th homer, off loser Doug Capilla, in the third after Andre Dawson was safe on a fielder's choice and then singled in a run during a four-run fifth that enabled Fred Holdsworth to post his second triumph in two starts.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 1
At Los Angeles, Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the seventh helped Tommy John to his 16th triumph and paced the Dodgers to a 4-1 victory over Chicago.

Phillies 3, Braves 2
At Philadelphia, Dave Johnson drew a bases-loaded walk off Steve Hargan with two out in the bottom of the 14th inning to give the Phillies a 3-2 triumph over Atlanta.

Greg Luzinski opened the inning with a walk. After Hargan retired the next two batters, he walked pinch-hitter Tommy Hutton and Ted Sizemore before dueling Johnson to a 3-2 triumph. Johnson then took a high-outside pitch, forcing in Luzinski.

Major League Leaders
NATIONAL LEAGUE
G AB R H E
Fisher, Phil. 120 553 91 187 345
Santana, Phil. 116 453 33 122 329
Simmons, St. L. 122 451 88 141 339
Griffey, Cin. 123 488 75 136 317
Templeton, St. L. 123 488 75 136 317
Luzinski, Phil. 118 446 78 139 312
Nastase, Ill. 122 408 90 127 311
Foster, Cin. 122 408 90 127 311
Valentine, Minn. 104 432 55 139 308
Munphy, St. L. 115 425 122 129 307
Rizzo, Phil. 101 397 51 125 305
Fisher, Phil. 101 397 51 125 305

Monday's Results
Montreal 7, Cincinnati 2
Philadelphia 3, Atlanta 2
San Diego 4, St. Louis 1
Los Angeles 4, Chicago 1

Tuesday's Games
Cincinnati at Montreal.
New York at Houston.
Atlanta at Philadelphia.
Chicago at Los Angeles.
St. Louis at San Diego.
Pittsburgh at San Francisco.

Wednesday's Games
Cincinnati at Montreal.
New York at Houston.
Atlanta at Philadelphia.
Chicago at Los Angeles.
St. Louis at San Diego.
Pittsburgh at San Francisco.

Thursday's Games
Cincinnati at Montreal.
New York at Houston.
Atlanta at Philadelphia.
Chicago at Los Angeles.
St. Louis at San Diego.
Pittsburgh at San Francisco.

Friday's Games
Cincinnati at Montreal.
New York at Houston.
Atlanta at Philadelphia.
Chicago at Los Angeles.
St. Louis at San Diego.
Pittsburgh at San Francisco.

Saturday's Games
Cincinnati at Montreal.
New York at Houston.
Atlanta at Philadelphia.
Chicago at Los Angeles.
St. Louis at San Diego.
Pittsburgh at San Francisco.

Sunday's Games
Cincinnati at Montreal.
New York at Houston.
Atlanta at Philadelphia.
Chicago at Los Angeles.
St. Louis at San Diego.
Pittsburgh at San Francisco.

Monday's Games
Cincinnati at Montreal.
New York at Houston.
Atlanta at Philadelphia.
Chicago at Los Angeles.
St. Louis at San Diego.
Pittsburgh at San Francisco.

With Men Leaping All Around Her, a Woman Scores a First

SOFIA, Aug. 30 (AP).—Darlene May made basketball history here last week as the first woman to referee a men's international basketball game.

The week before, she ended an all-male monopoly on refereeing at major amateur basketball competitions by calling the fouls at a women's game at the World University Games here.

There was some doubt that she could contend with male players, but she dispelled all skepticism in the game between Italy and France.

"When I walked out on the court, some of the guys from the Italian team gave me that 'Is she going to do our game?' look," she said. "But they didn't question it, just drew back a bit. I thought it was kind of funny."

Sharing officiating with a Danish man, May immediately established her authority over both teams. The 5-foot-7-inch May—a head or more shorter than most of the players—quickly whistled down an Italian player for fouling a Frenchman under his own basket.

The Italian team, one of Europe's best amateur squads, won the game.

"It was a clean game and easy to call," May said. "The only thing difficult to contend with is that they are bigger and get down the court much quicker than women."

"The guys argued with me on a couple of calls, but I pointed and explained to them and they understood. They're out to fight for their case, and I for mine. But there were no serious complaints."

May, a Los Angeles resident, was the first American woman to be sanctioned by the International Basketball Federation to officiate at international level. She earned the classification in 1975 but didn't have a chance to show her ability until the tournament here.

Does she consider her officiating a breakthrough for women's equality?

"That's what I feel," she said. "I think we've now proven there are some women capable of refereeing at international level. We do have some qualified people."

At least four other U.S. women also have the international classification, but none of the others have yet worked an international game.

In addition to refereeing, May is head women's basketball coach at California Polytechnic Institute in Pomona, where her teams have won 64 games and lost 18 in the last three years.

She acknowledges that she sometimes makes mistakes while refereeing. She called four other women's games at the tournament here.

"I have changed a few calls, but not many refs will do it," she said. "It does make you look bad, but I think men referees would be less apt to admit mistakes than women. Men can't let that image down."

May's first international game was at the World University Games in Sofia, Bulgaria, last week. She was 31 years old.

May's first international game was at the World University Games in Sofia, Bulgaria, last week. She was 31 years old.

May's first international game was at the World University Games in Sofia, Bulgaria, last week. She was 31 years old.

May's first international game was at the World University Games in Sofia, Bulgaria, last week. She was 31 years old.

May

Observer

Gnat Trouble

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON—For years congressmen unable to get the truly vital news of their activities back to the home folks because of intransigent, stupid or vicious reporters have been solving the problem by writing their own newsletters to constituents. President Carter is now having the age-old problem with the press. You may receive his first newsletter any day now. It will read more or less as follows:

Baker

China—Secretary of State Vance came by the White House this week right after getting back from China where he attended very important meetings and ate several meals with chopsticks. The national press, which spends most of its time swatting at gnats, chose to play down his trip by saying that nothing was accomplished. This is incorrect.

Not only did Secretary Vance prove to the Chinese that he could use chopsticks just as capably as former Secretary Kissinger, thereby preventing a serious loss of face for the administration, but he also completed the trip without incurring a serious outbreak of war.

This follows the pattern established by his trips to Israel and the Soviet Union, neither of which produced war. These important diplomatic missions have shown the world that Secretary Vance can travel anywhere without leading to war. Moreover, Secretary Vance is always pleased to get back home after his vital missions fail to produce war. As he said on returning from China—in a statement largely ignored by the gnat-swatting national press—"It's good to be back."

Energy—The most important issue that will face my administration is how to deal with the gnats. As suggested by the gnatswatters of the national press—who, by the way, are interested only in the most trivial matters—but energy. As I said the other day to Jim Schlesinger, a truly brilliant energy expert, "this energy issue isn't just for our benefit; it's for our grandchildren and our grandchildren's grandchildren."

Jim said it brought a lump to his throat to hear me say that. This struck me as real news. After all, Jim has been secretary of defense, head of the Atomic Energy Commission and chief of the CIA. When a man with that background has a lump brought to his throat, it's news. Did any investigative reporter bother to ferret it out and print it on page one? Did anybody in the national press corps show the slightest interest even when the story of Jim's lump was leaked all over Georgetown? No.

Is it any wonder that Congress continues to be more concerned about next year's elections than its grandchildren's grandchildren?

Music—As you know, I have been taking advantage of the White House's many self-improvement facilities to expand my knowledge of classical music. Last week I was listening to Bach's Fifth Brandenburg Concerto during my regular meeting with the congressional leaders when I noticed that several of the most savage beasts in the Congress seemed to be unusually soothed.

Afterward Speaker Tip O'Neill took me aside and said, "Mr. President, if you would just play that concerto for musical saw to your next news conference, those reporters would be too glassy-eyed to think of any trivial questions about Bert Lance's banking activities."

Tip was just joking, of course. He is a real lover of Bach, as well as Haydn, Beethoven, Scarlatti and Puccini, as are all the Democratic congressional leaders. The deep wells of culture in Washington are constantly ignored by a national press corps whose idea of a classic is Wayne Jennings' "Lullaby" or "Lullaby" of course, is a splendid musician and a fine citizen, as is Bert Lance, and there is nothing I enjoy more after a hard day at the Handel than a fine evening of country and Western music.

Regional Editors—A fine group of regional editors dropped by for a visit. These unspoiled men and women are the true backbone of American journalism, as they illustrated by the questions they asked.

Instead of harping on such pointless trivia as Bert Lance's banking habits, they wanted to know about the great issues—how I felt about energy for our grandchildren, whether Secretary of State Vance could travel without leading to war, whether I found Brahms or Mozart more effective background music for making vital nuclear policy.

What accounts for the difference between these fine, distinguished journalists and the gnat-swatters of the national press corps? The explanation is easy. They have not been corrupted by Washington. As I pointed out in my campaign, there is no place like Washington for taking perfectly decent, hard-working Americans and turning them into rotten apples. The place does terrible things to people. Except to me, naturally. And the Democratic congressional leaders, of course.

MARY BLUME

...There is very little difference between what tourists... do and see. They each attack Paris and Paris wins, triumphantly.

Paris Puts Tourists In an Exhibition

PARIS (UPI)—In a 1945 preface to a collection of his travel writings, Evelyn Waugh wrote, "My own traveling days are over, and I do not expect to see many travel books in the near future. . . . There is no room for tourists in a world of displaced persons. . . . Never again, I suppose, shall we land on foreign soil with letter of credit and passport . . . and feel the world wide open before us."

Waugh was wrong: It is the quality of travel that has changed and the tourist has of course flourished, cruelly despised by everyone, especially other tourists. Hell, as Sartre remarked in another context, is other people. Although we are all at some point tourists, we consider ourselves travelers: As a French journalist named Olivier Boissière says, the tourist is always someone else.

Mr. Boissière has been observing tourists for a small exhibition he conceived for the CCI section of the Centre Georges Pompidou. The show, held under a gilded mock-up of the legs of the Eiffel Tower, with a cast of the Venus de Milo in the center, shows Paris as viewed by busloads of Japanese, Russian and American tourists.

Mr. Boissière's first idea had been to photograph Paris as tourists from each of the three nationalities photographed it, but he realized that three photographs of the Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame, etc., would not be all that fascinating. His realization rightly suggests that Paris is unchanged by the tourist's eye, that it imposes itself on the tourist, pleasantly crushing him, and the exhibition bears this out: There is very little difference between what tourists of each of the three nationalities do and see. They each attack Paris and Paris wins, triumphantly.

Russians Deeper

"The Japanese are the fastest. They spend three days," Mr. Boissière says. "The Russians come for a week and spend four days in Paris. They are more deep. They're the ones who visit the Louvre best. The Japanese just see the Venus de Milo, the Mona Lisa, the Winged Victory and the extra vertebra in Degas's odalisques."

Mr. Boissière accompanied each of the three nationalities on bus tours, photographing the tourists at various stops. A big omission is Paris by Night, but he says he did not want to intrude upon the tourists' few moments of leisure. Perhaps his feet hurt. "Physically, being a tourist is a drag," he says.

The show consists of three scrapbooks of photographs, three showcases filled with typical souvenirs picked up by each nationality, and a lofty introductory quotation from the French sociologist Edgar Morin: "One may ask what is the aim of holiday travels where one visits landscapes and monuments one never visits at home. The same Parisian who ignores the Louvre, has never crossed the portal of a church and wouldn't turn to view Paris from Sacré Coeur, wouldn't miss a chapel in Florence. . . . What one sees is a universe which, despite time, is in itself a souvenir. . . . that is to say, a kingdom of death, but where death is transfigured among the ruins, where a sort of eternity vibrates in the air, that of a souvenir transmitted from age to age. That is why guidebooks scorn the industry and daily life of a country in order to present it as a mummy embalmed in an immobile setting."

In general the tourists saw the same museum, although the Russians paid their respects to the Communards and the Japanese spent more time in duty-free shops. The Russians in the photographs are a tightly disciplined, attentive group. The Americans are more strong-out and much more anxious. In each photograph there seems to be one lost soul about to stray right out of the frame.

Russian tourists near the Eiffel Tower.

Jumbo Scale

"It's because of the huge scale of their tours," Mr. Boissière says. "Americans are 378 on a jumbo jet, they all come from different places and don't know each other. They split up on tours to Versailles, to Fontainebleau, they lose track of each other."

The showcases of price-tagged tourists' booty suggest that the Americans and Japanese buy much the same stuff, but the Japanese spend more. The Japanese have the biggest perfume bottles and four Cartier lighters (the Americans have only two); the Russians buy, as plastic throwaways embossed with Paris scenes). The Russians, on the other hand, do not buy Mona Lisa coasters or Sacré Coeur ashtrays. They go to a particularly inexpensive store and stock up on clothes.

In the background of the show are the taped voices of guides, a very important ingredient of the tourists' unreal, embalmed world, Mr. Boissière says.

"They help create the stereotypes. I never thought of the Place de la Concorde as the place where they cut off Marie-Antoinette's head, but that's the one thing every tourist knows. The guides have to keep talking so they say anything—all the stupid details that tourists learn and, one hopes, forget."

Mr. Boissière is often on the move and of course feels he is a traveler and not a tourist. What happens when he runs into French tourists abroad?

"I speak English," he says, "and run like hell."

PEOPLE: Liddy Will Get Parole Despite Prison Strike

Gordon Liddy's Sept. 7 parole will not be held up even though he was a leader of a recent prison-farm food strike, and, it was revealed Monday, he concealed a club and a lead pipe in his cell for protection against other inmates at the farm in Allenwood, Pa.

Joseph Nardone, regional parole commissioner for the federal prison system in Philadelphia, said that Allenwood officials who reported about the pipe and club did not recommend a penalty against Liddy, the last of the Watergate burglars in jail. The same officials said that Liddy's transfer to the medium-security prison at Danbury, Conn., was sufficient punishment for his part in the cafeteria strike. "I think he has served long enough," Nardone said. However, Liddy must still pay $40,000 for some settlement of the $40,000 fine pending against him—his parole is "contingent on the resolution of it," a Justice Department spokesman said. By Sept. 7, Liddy will have served 53 months in prison. Last April, President Carter commuted Liddy's 30-year sentence to eight years, which made him eligible for parole after July 9.

Meanwhile, in Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper Voennoye Svyaznoye suggested Monday that Watergate criminals were getting too much time off their sentences, and were making too much money writing books. "The trials of participants in the 'Watergate' affair, which has been surrounded by a loud propagandistic hullabaloo, had as a goal above all to create the impression of the 'purity' of American justice and not really to punish those guilty," wrote commentator Yuri Romanov. He said that the fact "of the early release of the 'heroes' of these trials, who were condemned to long terms of imprisonment, serves as convincing proof of this."

South African Prime Minister John Vorster said Friday in Johannesburg that he never went to jail without reading a chapter of the Bible. He was opening the Transvaal headquarters of the Bible Society of South Africa.

Anthony Benedetto's drawings and paintings went on exhibit last week in Chicago for the artist's first one-man show. And except for a small detail, Benedetto's show might have caused as little excitement as the first exhibition of any struggling painter who has not decided on a distinctive style. But a sophisticated crowd, led by Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic and his wife, jammed the plush Campaella Gallery, nibbled cheese and egg rolls and sipped champagne at a private viewing. The small detail—Benedetto is singer Tony —SAMUEL JR.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

ANSWERING BOX NUMBER ADS
All replies to: Box 100, Herald Tribune, Paris. Should be sent to International Herald Tribune, 100 rue de Valenciennes, 75001 Paris CEDEX 01.

AMERICA CALLING
MESSAGES, AUG. 31, 1977
BOTSUP, ERMIDIC, RHPSAF, BUDJAP, ABUSJCR, SLUSJAA
MESSAGES, AUG. 30, 1977
BUDJAP, ABUSJCR, SLUSJAA, BOTSUP, ERMIDIC, RHPSAF, BUDJAP, ABUSJCR, SLUSJAA

ANNOUNCEMENTS
VISITING PARIS Buy a copy of "A Touch of Paris" magazine, articles, photos, only 10 francs. All your favorite Parisian articles, photos, only 10 francs. All your favorite Parisian articles, photos, only 10 francs.

PERSONALS
MEM 3-23-77. Call Parents at 01-23-77. Call Parents at 01-23-77. Call Parents at 01-23-77.

SHOPPING
ANTARTEX SHEEPSKIN COATS in London from Hotel Macdonald (Antarctic) Ltd. 120 Kensington, London W8 5AL. Tel: 01-23-77.

SERVICES
DIVORCE IN 24 HOURS Mutual or contested cases, low cost. Bail or Domestic Republic. Call 01-23-77.

EDUCATION
LA FELDUSE, 103-99-99, 91209 LA FELDUSE (Paris), school year, holidays, Paris, boys, girls, 10-18, 19-25, 26-35, 36-45, 46-55, 56-65, 66-75, 76-85, 86-95, 96-105, 106-115, 116-125, 126-135, 136-145, 146-155, 156-165, 166-175, 176-185, 186-195, 196-205, 206-215, 216-225, 226-235, 236-245, 246-255, 256-265, 266-275, 276-285, 286-295, 296-305, 306-315, 316-325, 326-335, 336-345, 346-355, 356-365, 366-375, 376-385, 386-395, 396-405, 406-415, 416-425, 426-435, 436-445, 446-455, 456-465, 466-475, 476-485, 486-495, 496-505, 506-515, 516-525, 526-535, 536-545, 546-555, 556-565, 566-575, 576-585, 586-595, 596-605, 606-615, 616-625, 626-635, 636-645, 646-655, 656-665, 666-675, 676-685, 686-695, 696-705, 706-715, 716-725, 726-735, 736-745, 746-755, 756-765, 766-775, 776-785, 786-795, 796-805, 806-815, 816-825, 826-835, 836-845, 846-855, 856-865, 866-875, 876-885, 886-895, 896-905, 906-915, 916-925, 926-935, 936-945, 946-955, 956-965, 966-975, 976-985, 986-995, 996-1005, 1006-1015, 1016-1025, 1026-1035, 1036-1045, 1046-1055, 1056-1065, 1066-1075, 1076-1085, 1086-1095, 1096-1105, 1106-1115, 1116-1125, 1126-1135, 1136-1145, 1146-1155, 1156-1165, 1166-1175, 1176-1185, 1186-1195, 1196-1205, 1206-1215, 1216-1225, 1226-1235, 1236-1245, 1246-1255, 1256-1265, 1266-1275, 1276-1285, 1286-1295, 1296-1305, 1306-1315, 1316-1325, 1326-1335, 1336-1345, 1346-1355, 1356-1365, 1366-1375, 1376-1385, 1386-1395, 1396-1405, 1406-1415, 1416-1425, 1426-1435, 1436-1445, 1446-1455, 1456-1465, 1466-1475, 1476-1485, 1486-1495, 1496-1505, 1506-1515, 1516-1525, 1526-1535, 1536-1545, 1546-1555, 1556-1565, 1566-1575, 1576-1585, 1586-1595, 1596-1605, 1606-1615, 1616-1625, 1626-1635, 1636-1645, 1646-1655, 1656-1665, 1666-1675, 1676-1685, 1686-1695, 1696-1705, 1706-1715, 1716-1725, 1726-1735, 1736-1745, 1746-1755, 1756-1765, 1766-1775, 1776-1785, 1786-1795, 1796-1805, 1806-1815, 1816-1825, 1826-1835, 1836-1845, 1846-1855, 1856-1865, 1866-1875, 1876-1885, 1886-1895, 1896-1905, 1906-1915, 1916-1925, 1926-1935, 1936-1945, 1946-1955, 1956-1965, 1966-1975, 1976-1985, 1986-1995, 1996-2005, 2006-2015, 2016-2025, 2026-2035, 2036-2045, 2046-2055, 2056-2065, 2066-2075, 2076-2085, 2086-2095, 2096-2105, 2106-2115, 2116-2125, 2126-2135, 2136-2145, 2146-2155, 2156-2165, 2166-2175, 2176-2185, 2186-2195, 2196-2205, 2206-2215, 2216-2225, 2226-2235, 2236-2245, 2246-2255, 2256-2265, 2266-2275, 2276-2285, 2286-2295, 2296-2305, 2306-2315, 2316-2325, 2326-2335, 2336-2345, 2346-2355, 2356-2365, 2366-2375, 2376-2385, 2386-2395, 2396-2405, 2406-2415, 2416-2425, 2426-2435, 2436-2445, 2446-2455, 2456-2465, 2466-2475, 2476-2485, 2486-2495, 2496-2505, 2506-2515, 2516-2525, 2526-2535, 2536-2545, 2546-2555, 2556-2565, 2566-2575, 2576-2585, 2586-2595, 2596-2605, 2606-2615, 2616-2625, 2626-2635, 2636-2645, 2646-2655, 2656-2665, 2666-2675, 2676-2685, 2686-2695, 2696-2705, 2706-2715, 2716-2725, 2726-2735, 2736-2745, 2746-2755, 2756-2765, 2766-2775, 2776-2785, 2786-2795, 2796-2805, 2806-2815, 2816-2825, 2826-2835, 2836-2845, 2846-2855, 2856-2865, 2866-2875, 2876-2885, 2886-2895, 2896-2905, 2906-2915, 2916-2925, 2926-2935, 2936-2945, 2946-2955, 2956-2965, 2966-2975, 2976-2985, 2986-2995, 2996-3005, 3006-3015, 3016-3025, 3026-3035, 3036-3045, 3046-3055, 3056-3065, 3066-3075, 3076-3085, 3086-3095, 3096-3105, 3106-3115, 3116-3125, 3126-3135, 3136-3145, 3146-3155, 3156-3165, 3166-3175, 3176-3185, 3186-3195, 3196-3205, 3206-3215, 3216-3225, 3226-3235, 3236-3245, 3246-3255, 3256-3265, 3266-3275, 3276-3285, 3286-3295, 3296-3305, 3306-3315, 3316-3325, 3326-3335, 3336-3345, 3346-3355, 3356-3365, 3366-3375, 3376-3385, 3386-3395, 3396-3405, 3406-3415, 3416-3425, 3426-3435, 3436-3445, 3446-3455, 3456-3465, 3466-3475, 3476-3485, 3486-3495, 3496-3505, 3506-3515, 3516-3525, 3526-3535, 3536-3545, 3546-3555, 3556-3565, 3566-3575, 3576-3585, 3586-3595, 3596-3605, 3606-3615, 3616-3625, 3626-3635, 3636-3645, 3646-3655, 3656-3665, 3666-3675, 3676-3685, 3686-3695, 3696-3705, 3706-3715, 3716-3725, 3726-3735, 3736-3745, 3746-3755, 3756-3765, 3766-3775, 3776-3785, 3786-3795, 3796-3805, 3806-3815, 3816-3825, 3826-3835, 3836-3845, 3846-3855, 3856-3865, 3866-3875, 3876-3885, 3886-3895, 3896-3905, 3906-3915, 3916-3925, 3926-3935, 3936-3945, 3946-3955, 3956-3965, 3966-3975, 3976-3985, 3986-3995, 3996-4005, 4006-4015, 4016-4025, 4026-4035, 4036-4045, 4046-4055, 4056-4065, 4066-4075, 4076-4085, 4086-4095, 4096-4105, 4106-4115, 4116-4125, 4126-4135, 4136-4145, 4146-4155, 4156-4165, 4166-4175, 4176-4185, 4186-4195, 4196-4205, 4206-4215, 4216-4225, 4226-4235, 4236-4245, 4246-4255, 4256-4265, 4266-4275, 4276-4285, 4286-4295, 4296-4305, 4306-4315, 4316-4325, 4326-4335, 4336-4345, 4346-4355, 4356-4365, 4366-4375, 4376-4385, 4386-4395, 4396-4405, 4406-4415, 4416-4425, 4426-4435, 4436-4445, 4446-4455, 4456-4465, 4466-4475, 4476-4485, 4486-4495, 4496-4505, 4506-4515, 4516-4525, 4526-4535, 4536-4545, 4546-4555, 4556-4565, 4566-4575, 4576-4585, 4586-4595, 4596-4605, 4606-4615, 4616-4625, 4626-4635, 4636-4645, 4646-4655, 4656-4665, 4666-4675, 4676-4685, 4686-4695, 4696-4705, 4706-4715, 4716-4725, 4726-4735, 4736-4745, 4746-4755, 4756-4765, 4766-4775, 4776-4785, 4786-4795, 4796-4805, 4806-4815, 4816-4825, 4826-4835, 4836-4845, 4846-4855, 4856-4865, 4866-4875, 4876-4885, 4886-4895, 4896-4905, 4906-4915, 4916-4925, 4926-4935, 4936-4945, 4946-4955, 4956-4965, 4966-4975, 4976-4985, 4986-4995, 4996-5005, 5006-5015, 5016-5025, 5026-5035, 5036-5045, 5046-5055, 5056-5065, 5066-5075, 5076-5085, 5086-5095, 5096-5105, 5106-5115, 5116-5125, 5126-5135, 5136-5145, 5146-5155, 5156-5165, 5166-5175, 5176-5185, 5186-5195, 5196-5205, 5206-5215, 5216-5225, 5226-5235, 5236-5245, 5246-5255, 5256-5265, 5266-5275, 5276-5285, 5286-5295, 5296-5305, 5306-5315, 5316-5325, 5326-5335, 5336-5345, 5346-5355, 5356-5365, 5366-5375, 5376-5385, 5386-5395, 5396-5405, 5406-5415, 5416-5425, 5426-5435, 5436-5445, 5446-5455, 5456-5465, 5466-5475, 5476-5485, 5486-5495, 5496-5505, 5506-5515, 5516-5525, 5526-5535, 5536-5545, 5546-5555, 5556-5565, 5566-5575, 5576-5585, 5586-5595, 5596-5605, 5606-5615, 5616-5625, 5626-5635, 5636-5645, 5646-5655, 5656-5665, 5666-5675, 5676-5685, 5686-5695, 5696-5705, 5706-5715, 5716-5725, 5726-5735, 5736-5745, 5746-5755, 5756-5765, 5766-5775, 5776-5785, 5786-5795, 5796-5805, 5806-5815, 5816-5825, 5826-5835, 5836-5845, 5846-5855, 5856-5865, 5866-5875, 5876-5885, 5886-5895, 5896-5905, 5906-5915, 5916-5925, 5926-5935, 5936-5945, 5946-5955, 5956-5965, 5966-5975, 5976-5985, 5986-5995, 5996-6005, 6006-6015, 6016-6025, 6026-6035, 6036-6045, 6046-6055, 6056-6065, 6066-6075, 6076-6085, 6086-6095, 6096-6105, 6106-6115, 6116-6125, 6126-6135, 6136-6145, 6146-6155, 6156-6165, 6166-6175, 6176-6185, 6186-6195, 6196-6205, 6206-6215, 6216-6225, 6226-6235, 6236-6245, 6246-6255, 6256-6265, 6266-6275, 6276-6285, 6286-6295, 6296-6305, 6306-6315, 6316-6325, 6326-6335, 6336-6345, 6346-6355, 6356-6365, 6366-6375, 6376-6385, 6386-6395, 6396-6405, 6406-6415, 6416-6425, 6426-6435, 6436-6445, 6446-6455, 6456-6465, 6466-6475, 6476-6485, 6486-6495, 6496-6505, 6506-6515, 6516-6525, 6526-6535, 6536-6545, 6546-6555, 6556-6565, 6566-6575, 6576-6585, 6586-6595, 6596-6605, 6606-6615, 6616-6625, 6626-6635, 6636-6645, 6646-6655, 6656-6665, 6666-6675, 6676-6685, 6686-6695, 6696-6705, 6706-6715, 6716-6725, 6726-6735, 6736-6745, 6746-6755, 6756-6765, 6766-6775, 6776-6785, 6786-6795, 6796-6805, 6806-6815, 6816-6825, 6826-6835, 6836-6845, 6846-6855, 6856-6865, 6866-6875, 6876-6885, 6886-6895, 6896-6905, 6906-6915, 6916-6925, 6926-6935, 6936-6945, 6946-6